LATEST FROM MEXICO.

Contradictory Reports—Miramon Not Dead and Said to Have Defeated the Liberals at Puebla—City of Mexico Still Besieged, and also Queretaro and Vera Cruz.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

NEW YORK, May 15.—The steamer Columbia, from Havana on the 11th, has arrived, with Vera Cruz dates to the 15th.

News from Imperial sources report the defeat of the Liberals, in the besieging of Puebla, and Miramon pressing them toward San Luis. Miramon is said not to have been even wounded.

Maximilian is said to have arrived at the City of Mexico with eight thousand men. On the 29th of April battle was given to Diaz, who was completely defeated, leaving all his artillery and one hundred and fifty prisoners, who were immediately incorporated in the Imperial ranks.

Juan Alvarez is also said to have withdrawn all his forces from Diaz after the Puebla massacre.

The passengers from Vera Cruz by the same steamer say all the above is false except that Miramon was not killed. A gentleman, who left the capitol April 25th, feels sure that no one left for Vera Cruz after that date. Marquez had 37,000 men in the city and was closely besieged by Diaz, with 11,000. Marquez has abandoned Tacubaya and Chepeultepec. Both the acqueducts supplying water to the city had been cut off and no food came into it. There were, however, several Artesian wells in the city, which could supply the inhabitants with water. This gentleman spoke with a courier from Queretaro on the 28th, who declared the place more closely besieged than ever. The general opinion in Mexico was that the Capital would soon have to surrender. Gen. Borandu, Imperialist, had died in Vera Cruz, from wounds from the besiegers. There are two Imperial men-of-war at Vera Cruz, both iron-clad built steamers.

The New Orleans Defalcation.

RUSSO-AMERICAN TREATY RATIFIED.

The Reconstruction Injunction.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, May 15, 1867.

THE NEW ORLEANS DEFALCATION.

The reported deficiency in the accounts of the Assistant Treasurer of New Orleans is about one million dollars, and the parties implicated have unconditionally turned over all their private property to the Government. It is not anticipated that the Government will be loser to any considerable extent. The government deposits in the New Orleans National Banks are less in amount than the securities held by the United States; therefore there will be no loss from these institutions. The parties implicated in the difficulties have heretofore borne the highest character for honesty and financial ability. It is supposed that they involved themselves in cotton operations. When the Secretary of the Treasury received the information of the probable defalcation, he, on last Friday week, dispatched a commissioner to New Orleans to protect and take charge of the interests of the Government. There was no delay on his part in the premises.

RUSSIAN TREATY RATIFIED.

The Russian Legation has communicated the following to the Secretary of State:

St. Petersburg, May 15.—The treaty is ratified. Bodisco carries it back immediately.
[Signed] GORTSCHAKOFF.

THE RECONSTRUCTION INJUNCTION.

There was a short argument in the Supreme Court on the pending bill on Reconstruction, in which the recent action of General Ord, in taking possession of the Treasury of Arkansas, is given as additional ground for the interference of the Court, as that officer had threatened to carry it out in Mississippi. Robert J. Walker argued on these premises, and was replied to by the Attorney General, who maintained that the motion to amend could not be received, but that the supplementary bill should be presented and be officially announced, and as an additional reason against the action of counsel, he contended that General Ord had never made any such threat as alleged.

Judge Sharkey left the city for Mississippi several days ago.

EXECUTION!

AN EXTRAORDINARY CONFESSION IN FULL.

Scenes and Incidents at the Scaffold.

In Tuesday's paper we furnished our readers with a full and accurate review of the murder of Robert W. Dinsmore, of Washington county, in December last, by Robert Fogler and an unknown confederate in crime. To-day we present an account of the execution, together with a full confession of the now executed criminal.

WASHINGTON COUNTY EXECUTIONS.

Executions for capital offences have been of rare occurrence in Washington county. In the early part of the present century a negro was hanged publicly on what is known as Gallows Hill, which towers over the upper portion of Washington, for the murder of his master, a Virginian, with whom he had traveled into that county. About 1824, Isaac Carig was publicly hanged on the same hill for the murder of his son. It is told by old citizens that the attendance upon that occasion was very large, and that the condemned man evinced remarkable bravado on the gallows. He was driven from the jail to the scene of the execution, sitting upon his own coffin, in an open cart, and calmly ate apples all the way. At the gallows he recognized many old friends in attendance and insisted that they should be early favored with a sight of his death, as he felt anxious that all should get home before dark. By persuasion his wish to accommodate his friends was complied with, and he was swung off before the appointed hour. These were the only executions up till yesterday in that county, and of course Fogler's punishment created much excitement.

THE LAST NIGHT ON EARTH

Was spent in earnest prayer up till four o'clock in the morning, the religious attendants faithfully performing their mission of love towards the prisoner. He rested in sleep from four o'clock till six, and after partaking of a light breakfast, renewed his devotions in preparation for the dread ordeal through which he had to pass.

At noon the prisoner partook of a very light dinner, and seemed to retain his nerve and courage. He cheerfully conversed with his attendants, and expressed himself fully prepared for the dread ordeal through which he was about to pass. After dinner he resumed prayer with his religious attendants, and in a clear, full voice joined in the chanting of hymns.

ADMITTANCE TO THE PRISON.

But few persons were supplied with passes to the jail yard to witness the last sad scene, and at a few minutes past one o'clock the ponderous iron gate was swung open and some forty or fifty gentlemen admitted, amongst whom were the jurors and representatives of the press, and physicians.

GETTING READY.

All now being in readiness, Sheriff Smith entered the cell of the prisoner, while he was engaged in fervent religious devotion with his ministers, and the presence of the officer of the law announced to the unfortunate criminal that the time for the execution was at hand. Fogler arose from the low bedstead upon which he was seated and, without any marked change upon his countenance, assured the Sheriff that he was ready for the ordeal, that he was (spiritually) unwell, but death would cure him. Arranging his clothing, and casting quick glances out of his cell window, and about the gloomy little apartment, he seemed inwardly to bid good bye to the scene about him, and taking up a roll of parchment on which was written his confession, signified his readiness for departure. The prisoner was firm and calm. His confidence in God's mercy seemed to give him fresh life as he left his cell for the

MARCH TO DEATH.

Bearing his confession in his left hand and walking boldly and erect, with a firm, solemn tread, he emerged from the jail door into the yard accompanied by Sheriff Smith, and followed by the zealous religious attendants, Revs. Watkins and Herr. The prisoner raised his eyes and obtained a view of the scaffold, but showed no change of countenance at sight of the barbarous instrument of torture upon which he was about to sacrifice his life in vindication of outraged law.

ON THE SCAFFOLD.

With dignified pace the prisoner took his last walk in life, up the steps of the scaffold, preceded by the Sheriff and followed by the clergymen. Rev. Mr. Herr advanced to the front of the scaffold and requested all present to kneel down and offer with him to the Throne of Grace a prayer for the spiritual welfare and forgiveness of the prisoner. Every person knelt down on the muddy ground and earnestly responded to a beautiful and fervent appeal to the Almighty for the pardon and forgiveness of the poor criminal who would so shortly be ushered into eternity.

PARTING SCENES.

At the close of prayer the faithful religious attendants arose and affectionately bade the prisoner a last, loving farewell; he seemed to feel deeply pained in the parting, a shade of anguish passing over his countenance. Rev. W. B. Watkins in an impressive manner now pronounced the benediction, and the clergymen retired.

FOGLER.

On the scaffold previous to being swung from earth to eternity we had our first view of misguided Fogler. He was very youthful looking and yet of fully developed proportions, well put together and muscular. He had a mild, sanctified looking countenance which failed to impress any with the idea that he was a hardened culprit. Indeed all who did not have the opportunity of seeing him previous to his march to death, mistook him for a clergyman and waited for the murderer. He was attired in a full dress black suit, presenting a neat and handsome appearance. His moral courage in facing death was wonderful. He was meek, humble and mild, and yet fearless, brave and bold. He died firmly believing in God's justice, and relying upon His mercy for forgiveness. We have never seen, apparently, so happy a death as Fogler's; it seemed that he was anxious to close the dark volume of life on earth to break the seal of life in eternity.

FAREWELL SPEECH.

Fogler stepped forward upon the scaffold and surveyed for a moment or two the audience before him, and proceeded to deliver in a rich, full toned voice, the following speech:

"Gentlemen and Friends—I have made a true and full confession before God and my fellow men. I am about to pass through the dark valley of the shadow of death, and will die with the full assurance that an all-sufficient Redeemer will receive my spirit. I thank the Sheriff, who has always treated me honestly and discharged his duties kindly and with integrity towards me, and these reverend gentlemen, Mr. Herr and Mr. Watkins, for their many acts of kindness and interest in my spiritual preparation. I hope to meet the Sheriff, as well as all here present, in Heaven. I have here a written statement. It is attested and witnessed by 'Esq. Robert Dougan, Rev. Mr. Watkins, Rev. J. D. Herr, Drs. Clark and Wilson, who I now authorize to have it published. I would like to have it published in the Washington and Pittsburgh papers, and also in the Beaver papers. I bid you all good-bye."

The venerable Squire Dougan, who had been very friendly to the prisoner since his conviction, ascended the scaffold at the conclusion of the farewell address, and received the confession or statement from the hands of the condemned. Fogler warmly kissed the old gentleman a fond farewell, after which Sheriff Smith proceeded to perform the painful task of preparing the prisoner for death.

Fogler stepped forward on the fatal trap, and quietly looked up at the rope on the cross beam, so as to get himself squarely under it, and facilitate the fixing of it about his neck. With much apparent feeling and earnestness the prisoner recited in a loud voice, which was heard outside of the prison walls, the following

DYING PRAYER.

"Oh my God, now when all hope for life is cut off, hear this my last prayer to Thee. Oh, Jesus receive my spirit, and conduct my soul safely through the dark shadows of death. Thou who didst pardon the dying and repentant thief upon the cross wilt hear my prayer, and into Thy hands I commend my spirit, Amen."

THE DROP.

The prisoner was now pinioned, his hands being held behind his back with handcuffs, and his legs fastened together by a strip of linen cloth tied tightly below the knee. The Sheriff took leave of Fogler, exchanging kisses with him. The parting effected the noble hearted Sheriff more deeply than the prisoner, and was calculated to make all who witnessed it very sad. The condemned whispered to the Sheriff, "May God have mercy on your soul," as the knotted rope was being arranged about his neck, and as the white-cap of ignominy, which shut out all earthly things from his sight, was drawn over his face, he said, "May God have mercy on my soul." The words had hardly passed his lips when Sheriff Smith touched the fatal trigger and the murderer dangled in the air. He suffered little. The neck was broken, and death must have been instantaneous, although the heart throbbed for thirteen minutes after the drop.

THE WEATHER.

The morning of the day which was to witness the death of Fogler, was dark and cloudy up till ten o'clock, at which time a heavy storm passed over the borough. The rain ceased at noon and held up till after the execution, but before the body was cut down it again poured in torrents, and rained more or less during the afternoon.

THE INTEREST.

Not much excitement prevailed in the town during the day, as the weather was inclement enough to keep most of the citizens at home. Of course that anxious throng of morbid curiosity seekers who ever lounge about the outside of a jail upon hanging days was in attendance, but in this case it was very small. To preserve order and prevent the possibility of any difficulty, Sheriff Smith had a guard about the Court House and jail—a squad of thirty citizen soldiers—who faithfully performed their duties and maintained, without much trouble, the quiet of the town.

THE GALLOWS.

The grim instrument of death was constructed upon a new and novel plan, having the trap to fall forward instead of from the centre of the platform, and having the trigger above the floor, so as to be touched before the Sheriff descended from the scaffold after fixing the rope about the prisoner's neck. It worked admirably, and reflected much credit upon the inventive genius of the gentlemen who contrived it.

Drs. Emery, Hill, Wilson, McKennan and Clark were in attendance at the execution, and when they pronounced Fogler dead his corpse was taken down and placed in a neat walnut coffin, and sent to Georgetown, Beaver county, for burial at the side of his mother.

Among those in attendance at the execution we observed S. B. Cluley, Esq., Sheriff of Allegheny county, Coroner William Clawson, and Messrs. Irwin, Ramsey, Locke and Stephenson of the Pittsburgh press, and Mr. Grafton, of the New York Herald.

THE CONFESSION.

We annex all of Fogler's confession, giving it for what it is worth, venturing to assert no opinion upon its merits or demerits. It places a new light on the Dinsmore murder, and if to be relied upon as truth, it throws the Montgomery boys in very awkward positions. Here is the document almost complete:

I, Robert Fogler, was born in Pittsburgh, Allegheny county, Pa., April 2, 1844. My father was of German descent. He came to this country when quite young. My father was killed about fourteen years ago, as near as I can recollect, by a log rolling over him. He was not of any kin to a certain Frank Fogler, residing in the eastern part of this county. My father's name was Martin Fogler. I think he was a member of the German Reformed Church; I will not be positive. My mother was born in Georgetown, Beaver county, Pa., where she died about four years ago. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Pittsburgh.

I was in the family of Wm. Hervey, a farmer residing in Canton township, about two miles and a half north of this borough, from the Fall of 1856 until the Spring of 1864, at which time I entered the army, and was assigned to Company B of the Ringgold Battalion. I remained in the service until the 6th of November, 1865. After being discharged from the army I spent the winter in Frederic City, Md. I came to this place about the 1st of April, 1866, I worked four or five weeks for William Hervey. I commenced to work for William Montgomery, Esq., June 11th, and was to stay with him three months; I remained until about the middle of November.

While at Mr. Montgomery's there was a number of plans laid to rob different persons. The plans were proposed by Mr. Montgomery's boys. I would consent to them at the time they were proposed, but when the time of action arrived I always backed out; it appeared that my conscience would not permit me to commit the acts. James Montgomery proposed to "Babe" (meaning by "Babe," William Montgomery, jun.; he is called "Babe" on account of being the youngest of the family) and myself that we should blow open the safe of J. N. Hainer, Harsha & Caton; also a merchant tailor by the name of Reibers, [illegible] store is next door to the saloon of Charley Wets, and even wanted us to rob his father's house. He said he would get a large amount of money—both paper and gold coin. The above was proposed by James Montgomery, a son of Hon. Wm. Montgomery. "Babe" proposed to rob the house of Martha Black. He stated that he could get the key of her safe at any time if I would accompany him. Martha Black is the daughter of George Black, deceased, and is now the daughter-in-law of Esq. Montgomery.

The Dinsmore robbery was proposed first to me by James Montgomery. He told me one evening, along about the first of October, that there was a certain Mr. Dinsmore dealt at his store, that was said to be very wealthy. He said he (Mr. Dinsmore) was in his store offering a thousand dollar bill to be changed, and said he would give any one five dollars that would change it, or get it changed for him. I told "Babe" about the matter, and asked him his views of the matter; he said he was "in." That was all that was said at that time about it. A short time after the above conversation, one day while in town, James Montgomery told me that Mr. Dinsmore had been East with a lot of hogs, and had just returned and had plenty of money, and now was the time to go for it. A short time after I had left Montgomery's, "Babe" and I made up to go to Mr. Dinsmore's and rob him. We started from town on a certain night together shortly after dark. We were armed with a Colt's navy revolver—the same shown in Court. I got cartridges for the pistol at the store of Robert Dougan. We took a box of boot blacking along for the purpose of blacking our hands and faces. We applied the blacking with a shaving brush, in the stable of William Montgomery, before starting to Mr. Dinsmore's. We wore army overcoats, and old worn out silk hats, both of us. We got the blacking and brush at the grocery of James Montgomery before leaving town. We went out the old Middleton road. We did not exactly know where Mr. Dinsmore lived. We inquired the road at James Brigg's house, a farmer residing about four miles from this place, and was directed by them. "Babe" went on while I enquired the road; I did not enter the house, but hallowed from the road. After searching for some time for Mr. Dinsmore's we gave it up, and "Babe" said he had an aunt living down in a certain hollow or low land, which he pointed out to me, and that they and Mr. Dinsmore were neighbors. He proposed to go there and inquire the road. He said he knew that Miller's family (meaning Henry Miller, who is a brother-in-law of the Hon. Wm. Montgomery) and Mr. Dinsmore's were on good terms, because he had seen Mr. Dinsmore get some snuff one day at James Montgomery's, and he (Mr. D.) told him that it was for his aunt, meaning Mrs. Miller.

We then went to Miller's. The house stands a short distance off the road. "Babe" went to the house, and I remained at a pair of bars; the bars are used as an inlet from the road to the house. I could hear him hallowing distinctly from where I was; he hallowed several times, but no one answered him; I think they were all in bed. After he had stopped hallowing I heard a noise like the falling of glass, or the violent pushing open of a door with a chain on for fastening on the outside, which a great many farmers use. After the noise I heard some one running towards me, which I soon found out to be "Babe" returning. I asked him what the noise was; he said he had thrown a stone through one of the windows, and he knew it had scared them nearly to death.

After "Babe" came back from the house we started to come back to Washington again. We came back the same road we went. We walked, both going and coming. We came to the stable of his father, and there left our hats and coats. The coats were army overcoats; both were colored black, and both had capes on them. "Babe" came up to town with me; we washed the black off our hands and faces at the watering trough on the farm of Harrison Shirls; the watering trough is on the side of the Middletown road, for the accommodation of the public. We came on up to town, and when we got to the corner of Main street the town clock struck twelve. We came up Chestnut street. "Babe" left me on the corner of Main and Chestnut streets. He was staying in town at the late residence of George Black, deceased, for company for Mrs. Mary Creacraft, formerly Mary Black. I went to my boarding house and went to bed.

We then gave up going to Mr. Dinsmore's until the night of the 4th of December last, and I believe we would have given up the idea of robbing Mr. Dinsmore altogether had it not been for the second suggestion of James Montgomery. He came to me one day and asked me when we were going to rob Mr. Dinsmore. I told him I did not know. Says he, "You fellows are getting behind," meaning "Babe" and myself. I was selling lamp-burners and stove lifters, and trying to buy corn for James Montgomery—went to the house of Mr. Dinsmore on purpose to find out where he lived—was at a number of farmers' houses the day I was at Mr. Dinsmore's—got a horse to ride at Wm. Montgomery's.

The Monday before the murder "Babe" and I were at the house of Nancy Mull, on the farm of John L. Cooke. We took the pistol along with us for the purpose of discharging the loads from it, which we failed to do. We thought perhaps the powder had got damp, and concluded to draw them by hand. The morning of the 4th of December last was very disagreeable. Rain had been falling all the morning up till about eleven o'clock, when it cleared up. James Montgomery and myself went to the grocery of James Mountz & Bro. about eleven o'clock that morning. While there "Babe" came in town and was passing the store, when I hallowed to him to stop, which he did, and came in the store. We stayed a few minutes after "Babe" came in, when we all three left the store together, James and "Babe" Montgomery and myself. We went from there to the store of James Montgomery, when "Babe" and I at once set about preparing to go to Mr. Dinsmore's that night. We got the pistol out of the drawer and went into the flour room, and "Babe" drew five balls from the pistol with a small gimlet. We then ascertained the reason we could not discharge the pistol before. It had been loaded, and some one had run melted lead in the chambers of the cylinder, and it had stopped up the holes in the nipples. The chambers had been run about one fourth full of lead. I told "Babe" to get some cork and burn it, to black our faces and hands with, and he replied he would.

At the ringing of the court bell for the afternoon session, "Bobbie" Poland came to me and asked me if I was going up to court; I told him I would go. After we had gone out of Montgomery's store, "Bobbie" asked me to go back and get him a sheet of foolscap writing paper, to write a song on, which I did; got the paper at Montgomery's store, and gave it to him. He and I then came up to the court room, where I remained about an hour. I left the court house about three o'clock, and went back to the store of James Montgomery, and asked "Babe" if he felt like taking a walk down street. He said he would. We went down as far as the Railroad Hotel, and stopped on the corner and commenced talking to John Arnold. We had not been there but a few moments when Robert Bolton came down street on the other side. "Babe" hallowed to Bolton to come over, which he did. He and "Babe" talked a few moments when Bolton remarked that he must go, and asked "Babe" if he was going down street. Bolton, "Babe" and myself all started down street together; Bolton left us at the depot. "Babe" and I crossed over to the other side of the street, and came back up to James Montgomery's store again. We went from there to the barber shop under the Mansion House, and both got shaved. We went from the barber shop to the "Iron Clad" saloon and got a glass of beer, each of us. We drank nothing more. We went from the saloon to the store of Robert Dougan, and I got one package of No. 44 cartridges. The package contained six cartridges. I wanted "Babe" to get the cartridges, but he would not; he owed Mr. Dougan some money, and had not the change to pay him just at that time. I think "Babe" stopped in Wowell's drug store or Seaman's marble works while I was in the store of Mr. Dougan.

We then went back to James Montgomery's store, and both went in and sat down. Mr. Dinsmore came into the store shortly after we did, and commenced talking with me about a lamp-burner that I had sold him. In a few minutes "Babe" got his books and said he must go home. Mr. Dinsmore then went up to him and asked him if he studied Latin; "Babe" told him he did not. Mr. Dinsmore remarked if he did he would read his lesson for him. "Babe" then started for home, and told me to come out as soon as it was dark, and to bring everything.

Between sundown and dark I went up to my boarding house to get my supper. I got the pistol and fastened it around me. I then asked James Montgomery for some powder to load the pistol, and a cake of soap to wash off with, which he gave me. I then started up street to get my supper. Mrs. Wibley was not at home when I went there. I forgot the dark lantern we intended to take with us. I then went down street again—went in James Montgomery's store, and told him to give me the dark lantern. It was in one of the drawers behind the counter. He gave it to me, and I asked him if he had any sperm or star candles. He said he had not, but would give me money to get one with. I told him I would rather he would get it, which he did. I remained in the store while he was gone. When he came back he asked me how we were going to work it to get Mr. Dinsmore out. I told him I was going to tell Mr. Dinsmore that Miller's family was sick. He told me if he was me he would fire some of the outbuildings, and while the family was putting the fire out we could rob the house; he said that was the way William Kelley done the time he robbed his father's house. I told him I would not do anything of that kind, for if we were detected it would go hard with us, for the Commonwealth could bring two indictments against us—one for arson, and one for burglary.

The candle I have described above was furnished by James Montgomery. After the above conversation I again went to my boarding house. Mrs. Wibley was still absent. I entered the house and proceeded to load the pistol and get ready. I put the old pants on over my black ones, (the pants were found the next morning by James Grier) and I had everything ready to start by the time supper was ready. We ate supper by candle light. While at supper Levi Hamilton came in and sat down by the fire. After I got through with my supper, I went up to the fire and commenced talking with Mr. Hamilton about the case of Coogle and Baird—talked a few moments and then went out and started down the Hickory road, which road is the prolongation of Main street in this borough. I met Mr. Kidd, the Clerk of the Court, about midway between his residence and Walnut street—he was coming toward town, carrying a lighted lantern in his hand. Know Mr. Kidd when I see him, but have not a speaking acquaintance with him.

I kept the Hickory road until I came to where the fields of William Montgomery join the lots of Frederick Naser. I then crossed into the fields and kept on across to the residence of William Montgomery. When I came to the stable the back door was open, and when I was about to enter the stable I observed one of the front doors was open also, and some one gave a signal of silence. The sound came from the direction of the front door. I advanced toward the front door, where the sound came from, and found it was "Babe" that gave the signal. He had a knife. The knife blade was about ten or twelve inches long, as near as I could judge, and about an inch and a half wide. He was cutting at a strap, about two inches wide, with the knife. The knife was new, and apparently had not been used much. I asked him what he was doing. He said he was making a belt to take the knife along, and to carry it in. Says I, "What do you want with the knife?" Says I, "You do not need it." He replied he was going to take it anyhow. He then asked me with an oath or byword, what kept me so long. I took my excuse, and he seemed satisfied. I then asked where he got the knife; he replied in the house. Says he, "There is an overcoat and hat for you." The hat was a broad-brimmed black hat; the coat was an army overcoat, colored black. I left the hat that I wore, in the stable. He wore an old worn out silk hat, and a black coat with a cape to it. The coat that I wore had a cape also. Says he, "I will go in the house to avoid suspicion; you wait here until I come back." He then started for the house, and went up on the porch and around to the back kitchen, past the window of the sitting room; he was gone but a few minutes. He then told me to go out the back door of the stable, and he would shut the stable door. He shut the back door, and fastened it on the inside, and shut the front door and locked it on the outside. The lock of the stable is a spring lock. He put the keys of the stable in his pocket to unlock the stable with on our return. He then came through a gate at the end of the stable into the barnyard and fastened the gate after him. We then went through another gate into a field that joins the garden and orchard, and kept across the fields of William Clark, and Ephraim Hess until we came to James Boon's. We crossed over in the road there, and kept the road all the rest of the way to Mr. Dinsmore's.

We kept on up the Cross Creek road until we came to a road running directly to Mr. Dinsmore's; the road turns off to the left opposite the tenant house on the farm of Samuel Taggart. We kept that road until we came to the old Middletown road. There is an old school house stands by the side of the road, a short distance above Mr. Dinsmore's late residence. We entered it, and lit our dark lantern, and proceeded to black our faces and hands. We took the lantern along for the purpose to see when we were properly blacked. After we had completed blacking ourselves we started towards Mr. Dinsmore's house. We entered a gate below the barn, and kept on toward the house. When we got about midway between the barn and house we became alarmed at a noise like some one coming towards us. We turned back and listened, and found the noise came from a lot of hogs that were feeding in the lane. We started again the same way, but found we could not reach the house in that way without alarming Mr. Dinsmore. We then crossed over the fence into the orchard, and went around in front of the house. I then went to the porch of the main building, and went up on the porch, and stepped up on a bench that was on the porch, and looked in the window, and found by the clock on the mantle-tree above the fire place, that it was half past nine o'clock. The reason that I looked in the window was because I wanted to know who was in the room, as James Montgomery informed me that Mr. Dinsmore had three or four big brothers, and we had better be on the lookout.

While I was looking in the window, "Babe" opened a gate in front of the house, and passed through it, and laid down on the ground beside some bushes. After I got down off the porch I joined him. The reason we did not enter the house when we first went, the family was at worship, I think, and we wanted to wait until the family retired. A few moments after I joined "Babe" at the gate, we heard some one going up stairs. Knew they were going up stairs because the windows rattled as if some one was walking heavily. "Babe" asked me what I was going to do; I told him I did not know. Says he, "you 'aint going to back out are you?" He said it would not pay to walk so far and not make anything. Says he, "it is more to your interest than to mine to do this. Here it is: either do it or be a poor man forever." Says he "you want money to start you in business, and it is there if you go for it." He then said something about me not having any heart. I thought a few seconds, and got up off the ground and told him to come on.

I suppose the person we heard going up stairs while lying on the ground was Nancy Jane Dinsmore. I then went to the porch of the kitchen, and went up the steps on to the porch. "Babe" remained at the corner of the kitchen. We knew if Mr. Dinsmore saw us both, he would not open the door. I then knocked at the door; some one asked who was there, in which I recognized the voice of Mr. Dinsmore, and I told him a man by the name of Johnson. He asked again who was there, and I told him Mrs. Miller was sick, or Miller's family was sick, I do not remember which. Mr. Dinsmore then opened the door. I told him Miller wanted some of the boys to come down and go for the doctor. He asked me who I was and if I wasn't lost. He said he thought it was Slemmons's that I was hunting. I asked him where Slemmons lived. He leaned forward out of the door to show me, and I then stepped in beside him and told him he was the man I wanted. I then presented the pistol at his head, and told him if he hallooed I would blow his brains out. I had the pistol in my right hand when I went upon the porch. Mr. Dinsmore said, "What do you want with me, you scoundrel?" or rascal, I do not remember which. When I entered the house I had the collars of my undercoat and overcoat turned up and buttoned around my neck to prevent them from recognizing me. Mr. Dinsmore seized me by the collar and commenced tussling with me. In the tussle one of the buttons was pulled off my overcoat, and one hook pulled straight, that I had hooked before entering the house. One button was pulled off my undercoat collar, and two off my vest. My shirt collar was torn open, but the button was not pulled off.

When Mr. Dinsmore asked me what I wanted with him I told him I wanted his money. The pistol was not cocked when I presented it at Mr. Dinsmore's head. After the buttons gave way on the collar, Mr. Dinsmore seized hold of the pistol, when a severe scuffle ensued. During the scuffle I called to "Babe;" I said, "Babe, come on." When "Babe" came in Mr. Dinsmore was trying to pull me into the lighted room. I called on "Babe" to knock him down; he did so immediately. I looked around to see what he was doing, and saw him throwing back the skirt of the cape of his overcoat, as if preparing to strike some one. I then heard something like glass or queensware falling, but did not know what it was at the time. "Babe" then picked up a chair and struck Mr. Dinsmore on the head, but owing to Mr. Dinsmore and I being in such close contact, he could not get a fair blow at him.

In my former statements I stated that Mr. Dinsmore at one time wrenched the pistol clear out of my hand. I will not be positive about that fact. When "Babe" struck Mr. Dinsmore on the head with the chair, Mr. Dinsmore released his hold on me. I then was between him and the lighted room, and "Babe" was in the rear of him. I saw "Babe" use the knife in the kitchen, while Mr. Dinsmore and I were scuffling—could see the bright blade flashing in the dark. When Mr. Dinsmore let go his hold on the pistol, I went into the lighted room, used for a bed room, and left Mr. Dinsmore and "Babe" in the kitchen. Mr. Dinsmore knocked "Babe" down after I went into the bed room. When I first entered the bed room Mrs. Dinsmore was standing in the middle of the floor; she went to the grate and caught up the fire shovel, and made a motion to strike me. I pointed the pistol at her, and she called to me not to shoot. Mr. Dinsmore then came into the room and picked up a chair and rushed at me to strike me. He was between "Babe" and myself, one of us being before him and one behind him.

I saw Nancy Dinsmore standing in the door leading from the bedroom to the hall; do not know how long she was there. When she left the room she left the door open after her. When Mr. Dinsmore went to strike me with the chair, I ran out of the bed room and across the hall into the parlor, and shut the door after I entered it. I was in the parlor a few seconds, and bethought myself that it would not do to leave "Babe" and Mr. Dinsmore alone. I opened the door and crossed the hall and entered the bed room again. Mr. Dinsmore immediately came at me and caught the pistol, when we began to scuffle low bent down. Mr. Dinsmore was at my left side: I had hold of the pistol by the butt and muzzle. In the scuffle I cocked the pistol and discharged it. I discharged it a second time, when Mr. Dinsmore immediately let go his hold on the pistol and went out into the hall. I thought perhaps he had gone to get his gun, and would return and shoot us both. I caught hold of "Babe" and pushed him out of the room. After we were both in the kitchen, I went to the bed room window and looked in, but the room was then empty. I told "Babe" to run for his life, as Mr. Dinsmore had gone after his gun.

When I fired the pistol Mr. Dinsmore and I were scuffling; I thought the balls were passing into the floor, and I thought by firing, it would cause Mr. Dinsmore to cease to resist. We left the house the same way we entered; we took up across the orchard toward the Middletown road. After I got over the fence into the road, I was so much excited and so weak that I fell down every few steps. I felt a severe pain in the thumb of my left hand, and told "Babe" I thought I had shot the end of my thumb off, but found on examining it I had not. I suppose my thumb was very close to the chamber of the barrel of the pistol, as my thumb had a blood blister on it, and the end of it looked like it had been burnt. Showed the blood blister to Revs. Dodge and Sinsabaugh and others.

When "Babe" and I got to the road, I told him I felt very bad—felt like fainting. I fell down several times going down the road to Miller's. "Babe" wanted to go to the woods. I told him to go ahead and never mind the woods. We came the same road we went. After we had ran about three miles, we slackened our pace to get breath. I asked "Babe" if he had lost anything by which we could be identified; he said he had not. I asked him if he had lost a butterfly off his collar (the fly had a bosom pin in it); he said he had not lost it, and turned around and showed it to me. I asked him what that noise was, like the falling of glass; he said he had thrown a stone at Mr. Dinsmore and it must have hit a window. Says I, "Why, 'Babe' you might have killed me dead on the spot." "Babe" said Mr. Dinsmore had knocked him down, and that his hat had fell off his head, and he was afraid Mr. Dinsmore would know him. He took off his hat and asked me if I could recognize him. I told him I could not. He then said something about me naming him at Mr. Dinsmore's—that I ought not to have done it. He then asked me how many loads the pistol had in it; I told him it had four loads in it. Says he, "If they follow us, defend yourself as long as there is a load in the pistol; kill before we will be captured. After the loads are all shot out of the pistol, we will take to the woods."

We came down on the Cross Creek road until we came to the farm of Samuel Morgan—the farm is well known as the old Cundall place. There is a tenant house on the place, fronting on the road; the house is about midway between Aaron Miller's and the residence of Samuel Morgan. There is a race running to the grist and saw mill of Mar. Wm. B. Cundall; it runs very close to the road. At that place we crossed the fence between the race and the road; then crossed the race on a rail—went down back of Mr. Cundall's house so as not to alarm the dogs. We crossed the bridge at the steam saw mill, (Cundall's saw mill,) and kept the road until we came to Boon's woods. We then crossed over the fence into the woods to rest, but we did not rest. We went on up through the woods until we came to a small run that flows down through the woods. I told "Babe" we had better wash the black off ourselves there. We pulled off our coats and washed ourselves. We did not light the dark lantern there; we thought some one might see the light, it being so close to the road. After we got through washing we dried ourselves off with a pocket handkerchief, when we put on our coats and started again.

"Babe" said he knew Mr. Dinsmore had plenty of money, or he would not have resisted us so hard. He proposed to me before we went to Mr. Dinsmore's, that we should knock Mr. Dinsmore down and tie him, and then tell him if he did not give us twelve thousand dollars we would burn his house over his head, and said we ought to have got some small rope to tie Mr. Dinsmore with. I told him we could get something there to tie him if he wanted to do it that way. After he asked me what the law would make that. I told him I knew nothing about law, but supposed we would be indicted for the attempt of burglary with the attempt to kill. If he was arrested he wanted me to stick to him. I told him I would, and if I was arrested I wanted him to stick to me; he said he would. He said he had heard Mr. Dinsmore say during the scuffle that he was shot. I asked him what Mr. Dinsmore had said; he replied he had heard Mr. Dinsmore exclaim, "Oh my, I am shot," or "Oh my God I am shot," he did not know which. I told "Babe" I would not have killed him for the world. He said he did not think I had killed Mr. Dinsmore; he thought I had shot him in the leg, and he hoped I had, for it would keep him in the house so that he could not recognize us. "Babe" said he thought Mr. Dinsmore had thought he was shot when he, ("Babe") had cut him. I asked him if he had cut him, and he said he thought he had. "Babe" said that "Jim,"—meaning James Montgomery—could not call us cowards after that. He said it was one of the boldest acts he ever knew of, and that there would be a big fuss kicked up the next morning about it. I told him not to say anything about it to his brother James the next morning, and he said he would not.

After we had washed ourselves in the woods, we kept in the fields until we reached the stable of William Montgomery. "Babe" then took the keys from his pocket and unlocked the stable, and got my hat for me. I gave him the overcoat and hat I had worn. I left him at his father's stable and came up to town across the fields of Harrison Shirls—came down past the sheep shed on his place. I went to my boarding house, pulled off my boots and muddy pants—took the pants, after I had pulled them off, and wiped the mud off my boots; then set the boots inside the fender to dry, and threw the pants out in the kitchen—took the pistol off and put it in a chest in the house, then undressed and went to bed. I got up during the night to get a drink of water, and turned the boots inside the fender to let the other side of them dry. When I was turning them, I found I had lost the heel off one of them.

The next morning when I got up, I found my face was very black—washed it in warm rain water with soap. Found my clothes were very muddy and cleaned them off. [I mean by the clothes, the suit I wore every day.] While cleaning the clothes I found I had lost two buttons off my vest, and one off my coat. I asked Mrs. Wibley for some vest buttons, and she gave me some, but they would not correspond with the buttons on my vest, but I sewed them on. Don't remember whether I put the boots on the loft, or told Mrs. Wibley to do it—think I done it myself. I asked Mrs. Wibley if Philip Bion was working at shoemaking yet, and she said "yes." I told her I had lost a heel off my boot, and guessed I would get him to put one on for me that afternoon.

After breakfast I went down street and heard of the murder in James Montgomery's store; Thomas Stockton told me. (Thomas Stockton is a son of Robert Stockton, deceased and clerk for James Montgomery.) He said Henry Miller had brought the news to town that morning at four o'clock; said Mr. Dinsmore had been shot with a pistol twice. The news of the murder surprised me very much. In a few moments after this conversation with Stockton, James Montgomery came in, and he and I started down to the depot to see if some oil had come for him that his father had bought for him. Says he, "You fellows played hell out there last night; you thought one ball was not enough and so you put two in him." I asked him how my face looked, and he said just as usual. I told him to say nothing about the murder. When returning from the depot James stopped at the grocery of A. C. Morrow, and settled off an old account with Morrow, and bought a dozen brooms from him. I carried the brooms up street for him. After we went in his (Montgomery's) store I told him I was fearful of being arrested. Says he "You are too fearful is all that is the matter with you." He asked me how much money it would take to pay my expenses to the place I was last winter; I told him fifteen dollars. He said he would give me the money if I would go away. I told him no I would not go, for if I did it would throw suspicion on me. He said there was no danger of "Babe" being arrested for no one would suspicion him, because he was a rich man's son.

I told James Montgomery about losing the boot heel and buttons, and asked him to get me some to replace them, which he did. He got me half a dozen coat buttons, and half a dozen vest buttons, black, cloth covered. He told me that I had better give "Babe" the pistol, and let him take it out to the farm with him. I then went up to my boarding house and sewed the buttons on my coat and vest myself. I tried to get balls to replace the loads that I had discharged the night before, from the pistol, but failed to get them. The reason James Montgomery wanted me to give the pistol to "Babe" to take out to the farm was, that the balls would be drawn from the body of Mr. Dinsmore, and if the pistol was found in my possession, the balls drawn from Mr. Dinsmore's body would be compared with the pistol, and it would go hard with me. After I had sewed the buttons on my coat and vest, I took the pistol out of the chest where I had put it the night before, and concealed it on my person, and started down street. Went to the store of James Montgomery—went down in the cellar and hid the pistol under the counter that stands in the cellar. I put it under the upper end of the counter. The end of the counter is loose from the main part of the counter; it can be pulled out far enough to admit a man's arm with ease. I put the pistol and dark lantern there, and covered them up with straw. Won't be certain whether I put the pistol under the counter or not; or whether I left it at the outside and covered it up with loose straw, expecting to send it out to the farm. Am certain I put the dark lantern under the counter. I then went up in the store and sat down.

"Babe" came into town between nine and ten o'clock, in the spring wagon, and came in to the store. I told him we had killed Mr. Dinsmore "dead as hell" the night before—used the word "last night," and told him about losing the heel off my boot. He told me to cut the boot up. I told him where the pistol was, and told him to get it and take it out home, and draw the loads from it. He said he would shoot them out when he got out home. He then left the store, and I did not see him any more until after he was brought to jail.

I sat down in a chair by the stove and commenced talking to James Montgomery. He told me to go and wash my face, in a bucket kept in the store for that purpose; he said my face was very dirty. James told me if I was arrested not to bring him into it. I told him I would not. Says he: "Me and my wife will both of us swear that you were here last night."

I was in the store when Christian Hornish came in, and said that a reward of a thousand dollars had been offered for the apprehension of the murderers. I said to James Montgomery: "Jim, let's go and make the money; we can catch the men that killed Mr. Dinsmore."

James Montgomery knew all about the murder. He knew that "Babe" and myself did it. James Montgomery never said anything about us giving him any of the money we expected to get at Mr. Dinsmore's. "Babe" suggested that it would be nothing more than fair that we should each of us give James a portion of what we got, for the assistance James had rendered us. James Montgomery suggested that we had better give him the money to keep for us, if we were successful at Mr. Dinsmore's. It was arranged between us that I should go off some place, and start a photograph gallery, and go to counterfeiting money after the excitement died out, and "Babe" and James Montgomery intended to pass the money for me. I am a photographer, or artist by profession, and worked at the business in Frederic city, Maryland, last winter.

A. J. Montgomery knew that "Babe" and I were going to rob Mr. Dinsmore. A. J. Montgomery, James Montgomery and "Babe" Montgomery are all the sons of William Montgomery, Esq.

The night of the murder, when we were coming from Mr. Dinsmore's, I noticed the overcoat that "Babe" wore had the skirt or tail very badly torn, and was pinned up. Can't say whether it was done at Mr. Dinsmore's or not. I told "Babe" when I left him at his father's stable that night, to sink the clothes, so that they could not be found.

The pistol that I used at Mr. Dinsmore's was the one fetched to James Montgomery's store by I. Y. Hamilton, Esq., or at least I was told so by "Babe" and James Montgomery. "Babe" and myself took the pistol from the safe, in his brother's store. It had no belt on when we took it out of the safe. I got the strap to make a belt of at the stable of Wm. Montgomery. It was a stirrup strap of a saddle. I got the buckle that was on the belt at the saddler shop in Phoenix Row; it was a black mounted buckle, and was sewed on the belt with a fine twine string; the holes being cut with a knife. I sewed it on myself. I had the pistol frequently, while running around town at night. It was usually kept in a drawer behind the counter. I got it whenever I wanted it. The pistol had the initials T. F. on the handle.

The pistol found in the possession of "Babe" Montgomery by John Baird, is the one I used at Mr Dinsmore's. It is Colt's navy—largest size. I never saw the pistol shown in Court by Wm. Montgomery. I carried a pistol most of the time while I was in the army. Carried both the Colt and Remington pistols—know all about them. Colt's the barrel is round; Remington is eight square.

We did not go to Mr. Dinsmore's with the intention of murdering him; we went only for the purpose of robbing him. I left town the evening of the 4th of December, between six and seven o'clock, to go to Mr. Dinsmore's. Know it was about that time, because the cars were whistling around in the cut before entering town. It was about twelve o'clock that night when I got back to town.

Having made the foregoing statement, I now deem it prudent to show the public why I did not testify in the case of Montgomery—not that I wish to expose any one publicly, but I want to warn others that may follow in my footsteps in crime, not to be deceived by counsel. I will now proceed to show the public my reasons for not testifying:

"Babe" Montgomery was brought to jail in this place on the evening of the 9th of December. On the evening of the following day, he called me to come to the door of my cell, his cell being directly opposite to mine. He told me to get down on the floor of the cell, and place my ear to the space under the door, as he wanted to talk with me, and did not want to be overheard. I told him during the day that I had the irons on; he said I ought to have them on; and I was a fool for telling John Baird what I did. After I got down on the floor, he asked me how thick the irons were, and if I had a saw; if I could saw them off if I had a saw. I told him I could saw them off, if I had one, but it would do no good. He said he would get me a saw if I wanted one. I asked him how he would get it, but he did not tell me how. I told him I did not want a saw. I then asked him what his father thought of the case. He said they were "down on me like hell," (meaning by "they" his father and Gibson) for coming out; but to keep quiet, and it would be all right. This was before I made the statement to the Coroner's Jury. After that he would not speak to me.

I had a man in the cell with me by the name of Johnson, from Independence, in this county, who was convicted of assault and battery, on oath of Rebecca White, and was under sentence. Johnson and Montgomery were soon on intimate terms. Gibson was acquainted with him before he came to jail, and used to give him papers when he was in to see "Babe." I requested the Sheriff to give me a cell to myself, which he did. He removed Johnson to the other side of the hall to a cell adjoining that of "Babe;" kept up a great deal of private talk, which I could not understand. Gibson used to go in to see Johnson, while in the jail. One day, after Gibson had been in the jail, Johnson called to me after he had gone out, to come to the door of my cell. I went to the door, and he told me to send out by John Kennedy, jr., for Woods Little. I told Johnson to write it down and give it to me at my cell window, which he did. As near as I can remember, the words he used were as follows: He said for me to send out for Little, who was a lawyer, and a good one—that there was a man to see him for me, and he was told that I could get clear. I told him I had no means to get a lawyer with. The next time, after Gibson went out, Johnson told me again, by writing, to send for Little—that he had said he would take my case, money or no money. Gibson said the lawyers all belonged to the Free Masons' Lodge, and it was a rule among them to help those who had no money.

I told Mr. Johnson that I heard that Little was in the west. He said Gibson would telegraph for him to come home. Some time after that Johnson told me to send out after Little and Judson. Gibson came into jail in a day or two, and when he was leaving he asked John if he might speak to him. John told him to go around to my window and talk to me. Gibson came to the window of my cell and told me in an undertone, before John came around, to tell him (Gibson) in John's presence, to send in Little and Ruth, which I did. They came to see me that afternoon. I told them that I had sent for them to take advice in reference to my case. I told them I had been advised to send for them. They told me they would undertake my case on certain conditions, namely, that I would do just as they directed in all things, and must reveal nothing they told me, and keep my lips sealed to every one else but them. I told them I would do just as they told me, and I wanted them to be honest with me, and I would trust them. Ruth told me my case was a desperate one, and that it would take desperate men to meet it; but that I had made it so myself, and that I could not blame any one for it but myself. Little then spoke up, and said he saw a faint glimmer of hope for me, and would acquaint Ruth of it at an early day, and then they would tell me all. They did not say much the first day, but said they would come in again in a few days.

The next visit was made by Ruth. I then acquainted him with my circumstances, and told him I had no money to pay a lawyer, and felt it my duty to inform him of it. He said he would take my case on the conditions as he said before—that it was a desperate case. He said he would promise me nothing at present, but that he would promise to defend me to the best of his ability, and see that I got an impartial trial. I then told Ruth that I was afraid he was concerned for Montgomery. He said he was not, and would not perjure himself for any one. I asked him if Mr. Montgomery showed any sympathy for me. He said he did not know whether he did or not, but that Montgomery told him when the officers were after "Babe," that if I had not confessed he would never have believed me guilty of the charge, and would have spent a thousand dollars on my case. Ruth told me not to go to trial this term of the Court (meaning last term). I asked him if he thought Montgomery would let "Babe" lay over three months more. Ruth said he could not help it.

I stated to my counsel all about the murder, and about who I had made statements to. He said they would have to keep them down the best way they could, and if they succeeded they were on a dead level, as the circumstantial evidence was nothing. He said the boots did not amount to anything. I said if I was to be convicted I wanted to live as long as I could; I told him I did. He said I had a great many warm friends on the outside, and that they would have to fight down a great deal of public prejudice, and if we could continue the trial until the excitement died out, it would be better for us. He told me Montgomery had employed the best counsel in town, and that Dinsmores had went to Pittsburgh and scoured the city, and could not get any one to take hold of the case but Fetterman, and he was not very good. Mr. Ruth never told me he thought I would get clear. He said if he could reduce it to imprisonment it would be a big thing. He said he did not think a jury could be got in the county that would make it out more than murder in the second degree. Little always held out the most inducements to me.

Ruth and Little told me one day that we must take the back track—that the great point in law was to deny all and demand the proof for it. We did not want to prove we didn't kill Mr. Dinsmore, but wanted them to prove that we did. They asked my consent to draw up a certain affidavit, which I gave them, if they thought it would better my case. They thought it would break those statements; at any rate it would not worst me. They told me to send for the Justices, Grayson and Hudson, on a certain Saturday, and that the affidavit would be ready, and that all I would have to do was to swear it was correct, and say, "These are the facts I gave you."

I sent for the Justices, and they and Little were brought into the cell by the Sheriff. The Sheriff came into my cell before he admitted them, and said he was going to ask me a question, and wanted me to answer him truly. I told him to put the question, and I would answer it. He then asked me if it was my desire that those men came here. I told him it was. He said he wished to exclude no one that would be of any advantage to me, but that it was his duty not only to keep me here but to protect me. The Sheriff then brought them in. Little then requested the Sheriff to quit the room. The Sheriff told Little he wanted to know the object of their meeting. Little then said he wanted to take my affidavit. The Sheriff told him to state what the affidavit was for. Little refused to do so, and the Sheriff to go out, that nothing of that kind would be allowed while I was in his charge. Little then requested me to say nothing in the presence of the Sheriff. I did not know the nature of the affidavit at the time, but afterwards found out it was a paper certifying to "Babe's" innocence in the murder. My counsel said it was necessary that the affidavit should be drawn up, so as to break my statement. They said if the statement went into Court uncontradicted, it was certain death to me.

Mr. Little seemed very much disappointed when the Sheriff interfered with his arrangements. He said he would have the Justices come in yet, and he would show the Sheriff it was not in his place to be present at any of our meetings. Mr. Ruth came in a day or two after that, and said he had expected that the Sheriff would interfere with the arrangement. He then told me he would have Dr. Creigh to come in and see me, and for me to state the facts set forth in the affidavit to the Doctor, as near as I could recollect. He said the Doctor would not say anything about it. I told him I would do so, which I did.

Little brought in the affidavit one day, and Ruth requested Little to read it to me, which he did. Ruth then asked me if I would sign it. I told him that I would not, as it would not be of any use to them in my case. They said it would, and I then signed it. After that Little brought a paper in to me and said he wanted me to copy it off in a plain hand write, word for word, which I did, and signed it and sent it to him by Ruth. Little said they wanted to have it published in the Washington papers, and that he would try and get Mr. Swan to come in and see me, and for me to give it to him and request him to publish it. Swan did not come, so I sent the paper and the copy also to him by Ruth. Little said when he brought the paper in, not to let any one get a hold of it. He said he had counterfeited his handwriting all through the paper.

I asked Little one day when he was going to have the affidavit published; he said in a week or two before we went to trial. I objected to having it published. He told me after that, one day, that they were going to have it published a day or two before the trial in the Pittsburgh papers. He said he wanted it to be published so as to arrive here a day or two before the trial. He said the reason it had not been published before was that they did not want them to have any hold on us. Suppose he meant by "them" the counsel for the Commonwealth. Ruth was in after that, and I told him to tell Little not to have the affidavit published at all.

Little told me they were going to apply for a change of venue in my case. He said he had evidence in my favor that I knew nothing about. He said I must keep quiet, and not make any statements in court, and if they forced me to it, to deny all, and go down on the affidavit described above. He said the court might want me to go before the grand jury, but that they would object, and if I was forced to go, to state the facts set forth in the affidavit. He said if I made the statement that I had formerly made, that I had better tell the Sheriff to get a rope and hang me at once. I told him the sheriff did not show any disposition of wanting to hang me. He said if there was ever a rope cut for me, it would be Sheriff Smith that would do it, for that thousand dollars was a big thing, and if I was hanged the Sheriff would get the reward. He further said if I swore against Montgomery, that the Supreme Court could do nothing for me, and if I did not, that they would carry my case to the Supreme Court on the bills of exception taken during my trial. The last day of my trial he told me Esq. Montgomery was out hunting up evidence in our favor, and said we had got them where we wanted them; and that he (Esq. Montgomery) would give them all the money that they wanted to carry my case to the Supreme Court.

Little told me before going to trial, that if they could manage to get "Babe" tried first, that Mr. Montgomery had said he would turn in with us and clear me; but that where two men were in a well together, that one had to be pulled out at a time, or that in pulling both out at one time you would be pulled in yourself.

Little came in one day after the death of John Stewart, and told me that Mr. Stewart was dead, and that the boot question was all gone to hell, for that Stewart had found the boot heel at Mr. Dinsmore's the next morning after the murder. I told Little that I had not heard of Mr. Stewart's illness. He said he had, and was waiting patiently, or had been looking for him to die, and that his dying was a big dog out of the road. When Little told me Mr. Stewart was dead I expressed my surprise in hearing the news. Little's reply was, "Yes, dead as hell"—think he said dead as hell over the second time.

One day while Ruth was with me we were talking about "Babe," and he said they would try and get "Babe" tried first, and that before he left the Court House, he would summons him for a witness for me, and make him swear that he had not seen me on the night of the murder, and that he would break the greater part of my statement. I told him I would not make another statement, if he could be benefitted by my keeping quiet. Ruth said to me if he thought I would, he would sink me to hell in a minute.

I expressed fear to my counsel that they could not get my trial put off. They said if they could they would, and if not they would fight as best they could. I told them if they thought they could get Montgomery tried first and clear him, and then all turn in and clear me, as they said they could do, that I could play sick. They said they thought it would work. Little said he would get me some lobelia. He got me some kind of pulverized stuff, and sent it with Ruth the Saturday before court with directions for taking it. I took some of it but it did not affect me as he said it would.

Little said he wanted me to keep cool during my trial, and take the bull by the horns, and if he told me to jump up on the platform and look "old buttermilk Judge" in the face, to do it; for, says he, "if you look your enemies in the face they will vanish like smoke." The evening I was taken before the Court and plead not guilty, Little whispered the words "not guilty" in my ear when I was standing on the floor.

Little and Ruth were in to see me the evening before my trial, after dark, and said they would apply for a continuance the next morning. They said if my trial was put off on account of my illness, that Crumrine would likely put "Babe's" off also. I told them that I was willing that it should go on. They said that they could not have it put off on account of the absence of witnesses. I understood that they had witnesses for my defence, and suggested to them to send some of them away. They said that the witnesses were of such a nature that they could not do it. I remained ignorant of the fact that they had no defence to make until the case was about to close. Little said he wanted to see how much stand up there was in me in court, and for me to keep cool and look the jury in the face. He said the jury was nothing but a lot of men to set up there and look at a man and try to scare him, (meaning by "man" a prisoner.) He told me to keep cool and quiet, and look every one in the face, as they would place men in different parts of the court room to watch me, and very likely have Mrs. Dinsmore and her children inside the bar to try to throw me off my guard. He told me to play strong Republican, as most of the jurors would be Republican, and to express my political views to the Sheriff. He wanted me to play off insane at one time, and I would not do it. He told me to play religious when the ministers came to see me, and that it would benefit me. He told me another time, before I went up to the Court House for trial, to rub black in my eyebrows and around my neck—he wanted me to bear that in mind. I did not do it; and Ruth said I had better not do it.

After the jury retired at the close of my trial, my counsel cautioned me on conversing with any one on my case. They said doubtless the Sheriff or some of the party would approach me, and try to pump me, but to spurn them from me, and not to tell them anything, and keep good heart—that the jury would not be in as soon as they expected them. When the jury rendered the verdict at the ringing of the bell, my counsel met me at the door of the Sheriff's office, and went with me to the court room, and seated me between them, and told me not to get excited if the jury rendered a verdict of murder in the first degree, for that I could blame no one but myself for it, and not to testify against Montgomery, for it would be murder to them, as well as shut off all hope from the Supreme Court for me.

Little told me, before my trial, that John Lennox was sure of his acquittal, and he was in a worse fix than me. Little said if they failed at the Supreme Court, that he had a friend in Harrisburg, a member of the bar, and that he had put himself in correspondence with him in regard to my case—that his friend was a Geary man, and that Geary was a Johnson man, and that they would close up on the Governor for pardon on the grounds that the Governor, as well as myself, had been in the army.

The day before I was called up for a witness by the Court, Messrs. Gibson and Freeman Brady, jr., visited John Lennox. After they went out Lennox rapped on the door of his cell and asked me if there was any one in the yard. I told him no. He said he had good news for me. He said Wm. Linn, Esq., was here from Pittsburgh, and looked my case all over, and if I did not go up to the Court House and swear my life away again, that Linn would take my case and carry it to the Supreme Court, and clear me and have me out of here by May, and for God's sake to keep quiet. He said Linn wanted to make himself a big name, and that he would interfere when I was taken up to be sentenced, and tell them he was going to take the case. He said Freeman Brady said his (Lennox's) lawyers would help Linn through with the case. I asked Lennox who told him that. He said he would not tell me, but to take an old fool's advice and keep quiet.

"Babe" Montgomery called me to the door of my cell the morning that I was called before the court, and told me to keep quiet, and I would come out all right.

One day Little told me that the counsel for the commonwealth was afraid they could not convict me. He said that he had a man posted one night in one of the rooms adjoining Crumrine's office, and that one night the man was in the hall below the office, about twelve o'clock, and overheard the Sheriff and Boyd Crumrine and Harvey Vankirk talking about the course they intended to pursue when the case came up for trial. They were going to apply for a separate trial, and try me first and convict me and then make a witness of me against Montgomery. He told me at another time that Montgomery was sounding him to find out the course we were going to pursue at trial, but he (Little) would not tell him, but said to Montgomery we were like the chickens with the horse—"if you do not tramp our toes we will not bother you," and that Montgomery said it was all right. Little told Montgomery that it was not necessary to prove who was in company with "Babe" that night—as he said that he could prove "Babe" was in bed—and if he had any company it was in bed with him.

Little said that Ruth and himself were both young in the practice of law, and had been looking for some hard case for some time, and thought my case was the one that they were looking for, and if they could clear me their fortune was made. If they did not get the big cases they would get small ones to make up. They both told me to stick to them and they would stick to me. Little told me that Montgomery told them that they had got them just where they wanted them; and Little said they would carry my case to the Supreme Court and keep it going for a year. He told me at another time that one of the jurymen told him that there would have to be a good deal of hard swearing done to make him believe that I was guilty.

I was visited on a certain morning by the Rev. Dodge and Andrew Brady. I do not recollect the day of the month, but while they were in my cell Mr. Brady asked me if I had any hope of getting out of jail. I told him that I could not answer his question. Mr. Brady then asked me if I implicated Montgomery honestly in my statements. I told him that he would have to excuse me for not answering his questions, as my counsel had strictly forbidden me answering any questions put to me by any one but them.

The next time Little came in to see me, I told him that Mr. Brady had been in to see me, and had been asking me questions pertaining to my case. He (Little) told me that he was going to have the Rev. Dodge and Mr. Brady to visit me again, and he wanted me to take Mr. Brady aside and tell him that my statements had been obtained from me by the Sheriff and others by inducements held out by them. Little told me to tell Mr. Brady that the Sheriff had told me that they had found the heel off my boot, and the boots also, and a button off my vest, and that they could trace me every step of the way to Dinsmore's, and that Mrs. Dinsmore had identified me as one of the men, and would swear so, and that they had the dead wood on me, and that there was no chance of escape, and that I had better make a statement and become a witness for the commonwealth than to keep quiet and be hung; and that the Sheriff said that it would be better for me to do so, that he would not say that it would, but at any rate it could not worst me; and that I heard the men in the yard say they ought to hang me, and that I ought to be strung up to a lamp post; and that I had made the statement through fright, and the inducements held out by the Sheriff; and that I was an orphan and a stranger in town, and had no one to advise me, and was fearful of my life being taken on the spot; that I had seen the like done in the army—that is, I had seen men lynched. I told Little that I had never seen a man lynched. Says he, "Brady will not know what you have seen." Little said to tell him also that the Sheriff had told me what to say in my statement, and that I ought to make a statement, and that it was the Sheriff that mentioned about me bringing "Babe" into it—that the Sheriff had talked the matter all over with me in my cell before I made any public statement at all.

I told Little the Sheriff did not say anything to me about making statements, only what was said in the yard before a number of men; and that the Sheriff would deny the assertion, as it was false. Little said that was just what he wanted him to do; and he had a special reason for wanting him to do it. He told me to tell Mr. Brady that I had been to Dinsmore's once, and thought I could describe the place, and that I had heard the particulars of the murder talked over the morning before I was arrested. He charged me to tell Mr. Brady to say nothing about our conversation unless he was asked about it in Court; and to tell Mr. Brady that I took him to be my friend by the plain and honest way he talked to me; and to conclude by saying: "Mr. Brady, you know my statements made to different persons—that the whole thing is a fabrication by the length of it." I told Little I did not care about making the statement to Mr. Brady. A large part of this language is used in the affidavit drawn up by my counsel.

The next time Little came in after the above conversation, he asked me if Mr. Brady and Rev. Dodge had been in to see me yet. I told him they had not. He said he would have them to come in yet; and that Mr Brady dare not say anything about it, for that his (Brady's) brother and three or four others belonged to a certain Lodge, and that Andy Brady belonged to it also. He did not state the nature of the Lodge. He said that Mr. Brady's brother was a lawyer, and that still made his promise of secresy more binding. But, however, Mr. Brady did not come, and therefore I did not make any statement to him or any one else but Dr. Creigh, in which I contradicted my former statement.

Ruth told me at one time he thought of sending in Boyd Crumrine, R. M. Gibson, Wm. M'Kennan, David S. Wilson, and other prominent lawyers of both sides—meaning Democrats and Republicans—and for me to run over and state the facts set forth in the affidavit, to them, and then the Commonwealth could not say it was all a one sided question. He did not send them in.

Little told me one day to get some paper and write him out a list of all the names of the persons that were admitted to my cell, both ladies and gentlemen. He said he would find use for it on my trial, to show how that I had been kept for a show. He said the law would not permit visitors to be admitted to my cell without my consent, and told me to tell the Sheriff to stop admitting any one. I made out the list, but did not give it to my counsel till the jury had retired at the close of my trial. I gave it to Ruth. He asked me why I did not give it to him before my trial commenced. I told him I did not think it would be of any use to him. I suppose it is in his hands yet.

Ruth and Little have a certain paper in their possession which was got from me by them, I supposed, for the purpose of benefitting me on my trial. I wish to inform the public of it for fear that it might injure the Sheriff, who has always acted honest with me and been my best friend, and if I had taken his advice and listened to him, I

The Pittsburgh Gazette.

THURSDAY, MAY 16, 1867.

A CORRESPONDENT recommends WM. A. HERRON, Esq., as the Republican candidate for Mayor of this city at the next election.

A BLACK MAN, born in Denmark, has been admitted to naturalization in New Orleans. This is the first case of the sort in that city—perhaps in the country.

THE Nashville Gazette states that the northern democratic leaders, upon consultation, have concluded "to ignore the negro altogether;" which it regards to be eminently proper, because it is fully satisfied that holding on to the negro question would destroy that party.

YESTERDAY MORNING'S TELEGRAMS gave an imperfect and misleading account of the riot at Mobile, growing out of Mr. KELLEY'S speech. This morning's dispatches put the matter in a clear light, showing that so far from Mr. KELLEY being arrogant and provoking, the attack upon him was not only causeless, but premeditated. The Southern people—at least many of them—have yet to be taught that Northern men must and will be heard at the South in the discussion of national questions with the same security that Southern men speak at the North. That is one ingredient of reconstruction that will not be overlooked.

THE RELEASE OF DAVIS.

The release of Mr. DAVIS, inspired by the administration at Washington, elicits great diversity of comments. By some journals, it is hailed as an act of national justice; by others it is applauded as a display of national magnanimity; and by still others it is denounced as a national humiliation matched only by the first battle of Bull Run. It is possible the best time has not arrived for making up a final judgment upon the transaction.

The course of the administration towards Mr. DAVIS, from his arrest to his liberation, has not been to our liking. He ought promptly to have been turned over to the civil authorities, put upon his trial, and brought to punishment. This would have vindicated the laws in the presence of the whole world. Mr. JOHNSON, upon his accession to the Presidency, evinced as far as words could, a purpose to go much farther than this. It seemed as though his patriotic wrath could be appeased only by a myriad holocausts. There was something almost demonic in his weird blood-thirstiness. His rage cooled so suddenly as to give color to the suggestion that it was simulated. In defiance of all propriety, Mr. DAVIS was held in military custody, not to be tried, but to be kept from trial. This violence done the laws was his safety, but it was most pernicious in itself, and fraught with danger as a precedent. When the passions of the hour shall subside, this will be seen and felt. It was better the prisoner should be liberated, than that this anomalous condition should remain; that is, it was wiser that one man, no matter how guilty, should go free, than that farther violence should be done to the civil code, which is the palladium of the rights and security of every citizen.

So far as the proceedings before Judge UNDERWOOD go, there is nothing to prevent the arraignment of Mr. DAVIS at the November term. He is a prisoner released on bail, conditioned for his appearance when wanted. So, then, he has simply been delivered from military custody into the hands of the civil magistrates. This process ought to have been perfected two years ago. Whether his case will be called up in November, or at any time, is quite another question. After the delay that has occurred, it may well be doubted if he will be put upon his trial. The diversity of opinion and feeling exhibited among men of unquestioned loyalty, touching his bailment, strengthens the presumption that an end has been made of his case.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILWAY.

The great national enterprise of making a communication by rail from the Missouri river to the Pacific ocean, or, to speak more specifically, to California, is in a fair way to be completed in the course of four or five years from this time—possibly less; for never before has work been driven with more energy, and never were tremendous natural obstacles attacked and overcome with a spirit so bold and daring.

But the work, although really but one, is prosecuted under three distinct names and by as many corporations. These are, First: The Union Pacific Railway, beginning at Omaha on the Missouri, and running up the valley of the Platte. Second: The Union Pacific Railway, Eastern Division, beginning at Kansas City, on the Missouri, and running west up the valley of the Kansas. Third: The Central Pacific Railway, beginning at Sacramento, in California, and running eastward in the direction of Salt Lake City, which is to be the eastern terminus of this division of the road.

Both the Union Pacific Railways—the Platte and Kansas—are aiming for the same point. When all three shall be completed we shall have two roads from the Missouri to Salt Lake City, and one, the "Central," from that point to Sacramento and to San Francisco, for those two cities are soon to be united by rail. It is of the Central that we propose more particularly to speak this morning.

As we have said, this road starts at Sacramento. It runs in a northeast direction, skirting the western face of the Sierra Nevada, for nearly a hundred miles, in which the unprecedented elevation of seven thousand feet has been attained. Here the extreme summit is pierced by a tunnel of not unusual length. We believe it does not much exceed half a mile, of which 1,958 feet had been excavated on the first of March. The work is progressing at the rate of fifty feet per week.

From Sacramento to the tunnel (94 miles) the road is finished and trains run regularly. On the eastern slope of the mountain, which is much easier than the western some forty or fifty miles are finished, and cars running. By midsummer the famous Washoe region—the richest silver mines in the world—will be reached; and by January next about 250 miles of the distance between the navigable waters of the Pacific and Salt Lake City will be completed, and thus give to Nevada an outlet to the commercial world.

The feat of crossing the Sierra Nevada is probably the greatest engineering achievement on record. The summit, at an elevation of seven thousand feet, has been reached, yet in no place, it is said, does the grade exceed 116 feet per mile, and the smallest radius is 573 feet. On the Baltimore and Ohio road the greatest elevation is 2,700 feet; the maximum grade 116 feet. On some of our Atlantic lines they have curves as low as 300 feet.

The elevation of the great tunnel on Mount Cenis, between France and Italy, is six thousand feet. Thus the summit tunnel of the Central Pacific road is 1,000 feet greater than that of Mount Cenis; and 4,300 feet greater than the highest summit on the Baltimore and Ohio road. The only difficulty to be apprehended are the tremendous snows and drifts of those Alpine regions. During the past winter successive snow storms occurred, and the company kept a strong force at work night and day on the summit, and by so doing avoided any long interruption of trade. But whether any work of the kind can, as a regular part of its business, sustain a perpetual struggle with elements over which human skill and power can have no control, is, it must be confessed, still an unsolved problem. The company, however, are still hopeful, and are pressing on their work with unabated energy.

But at the worst there is a very good alternative. From a point on the Union Pacific road, about six hundred miles west of St. Louis, the old Santa Fe road leaves the Smoky Hill, and runs in a southwest direction across the Buffalo grass region to Santa Fe. The distance is only 416 miles. Thence, through Arizona, to the head of the Gulf of California, there is no difficulty; and from the Gulf of California to San Francisco there is no mountain barrier whatever, for this route runs round the southern end of the Sierra Nevada, and up between that mountain and the coast, through the finest and most fertile portion of California.

It is true that the failure, which we do not apprehend, of the Central Pacific Railroad to overcome the difficulties of which we have spoken would be injurious to the Union Pacific Railway of the Platte, as a highway to California; yet, even in the worst event, that work would still be of great utility as a highway to the Rocky Mountains, to Idaho, and other portions of the vast northwestern interior now known to be rich in gold and silver, and other minerals. We have no doubt, however, but engineering and mechanic skill, though at serious cost, will overcome all obstacles. But the Union Pacific Railway of Kansas, has the alternative, in case of need of the more southern route just spoken of. It can take one route or the other, as the experience of one or two more winters shall determine to be expedient. In fact, however great the success of the Central Road may be, in itself, and in connection with the Union Pacific, which is designed to meet it at Salt Lake City, this Southern road, by way of Santa Fe, Arizona and the Gulf of California, ought to be made at the earliest practicable day. No road would pay better direct and indirect profits than this.

Mormon Emigrants.

The London Review tells us about the Mormon recruits which are despatched to this country from Europe:

> The ignorant, untaught English and Welsh, generally, too, of dissenting religious opinions, if of any, form the staple of the recruits; and these are beguiled to a "land flowing with milk and honey," aided in their emigration, carefully watched as they set out, and tended when they arrive. From the day they leave London or Liverpool till the hour they arrive they are not left alone. Mr. Dickens saw one of their emigrant ships, and while admiring its cleanliness, was struck with the utter reticence and silence of all upon the question of religion. The truth is, the "Saints" are told to hold themselves as saints, and to avoid talking with the Gentiles. Their superiors or elders are always on the watch. They first entrap them, and then hoodwink them.
>
> During the voyage out they are well treated, and herein our own Emigration Commissioners might learn a lesson; but until the birds are caged, they really know nothing or very little of the trap they have fallen into. Hence many leave this country. Last year more than two thousand joined the false prophet. In 1861 there were 930 males, 1,042 females—1,972. From 1851 to 1861 as many as 21,195 persons were caught by the emissaries of Saint Joe. It is said that this number embraces all classes. In 1861 a gentleman of Merthyr, Glamorganshire, gave £1,000 to the scheme and "joined" the Mormons, doubtless for his own purposes. Rather a different bird to catch was an old woman of eighty, who hastened to lay her old bones in the land of the saints. To supply this constant stream of emigrants there is a large European mission, and in Europe, it is said, four hundred branches.
>
> In London and its environs, we have meeting rooms. These places are generally shabby teetotal or dancing halls, or even "penny gaffs" during the week, and on Sunday an elder, with two or three companions to back him up, preaches in a low and vulgar style on religion, expounding the Proverbs, or the gospel even, and citing David and Solomon. Seldom or never is pologamy openly touched on; it is only to the neophytes, perhaps only to the matured Mormon, certainly not the stranger, that such a thing is broached. To conclude, such an agency is terrible in its results. We do not want a religious persecution, but we hold, with an astute American, that these people are contravening the law, not only of God—that the world sometimes winks at—but of the State, of knowledge, of health, of morals, and of Nature!

Solid Black Men.

The rapidity with which the negroes are acquiring wealth has, we think, demonstrated that they not only can, but will take care of themselves. Of course there are a great many improvident black men, just as there are a great many improvident white men; but we think, all things considered, the proportion is in favor of the blacks. Nearly all the negroes desire to acquire homes, and already the cities and towns of the South are being girdled about with long rows of negro cottages. Some of the more thrifty blacks have already begun improving the buildings and beautifying the grounds. In New Orleans we know a negro who has made eighty thousand dollars in three years. We know another negro, who was a slave, that now is quite wealthy, and hires his former master, to whom he pays a good salary. In this city, Washington Spradlin, a black man, is worth about eighty thousand dollars, and there are many others worth smaller amounts. In Lexington, Kentucky, Moses Spencer, James Turner, William Taylor, Charles Allen, and two or three other black men, are worth twenty-five thousand dollars each. Moses Spencer, who now owns the largest furniture store in the city, and who is worth at least thirty thousand dollars, was formerly a slave of Mr. David Sayre, of Lexington. Judging by these evidences, some of the richest men in the country after a while will be black men. The best pair of horses and turnout in New Orleans is owned by a negro. This man sports a coachman, a footman, and dozens of retainers and servants. He lives in magnificent style, and is said to be very rich. It will be very funny no doubt, to many very disgusting, to meet in a very few years at the fashionable watering places, the Hon John Woollyhead and daughters, or His Excellency, William Black and wife, who are as black as the ace of spades. And, then, only to think of that wench with the handsome dress and India shawl, or that other ebony feminine with the diamonds and pearl necklace of "exquisite beauty." It would seem we are coming to all this whether we like it or not, but we fear Sambo, with all his money and politeness, will meet with an ill-reception among the white brethren, and we doubt whether he will be allowed to dance at the fashionable parties with Miss Fallikins, the host's youngest daughter.—Wash. Cor. Cin. Gazette.

More Excavations at Pompeii.

A correspondent, writing from Naples, April 2d, says:

> On last Friday there was an excavation in the presence of the Minister of the Royal Household, when a wonderful discovery was made. It was a kitchen that was disinterred, and on one of the fornelli—small square holes or fireplaces, such as are in use in the present day, and are fed with charcoal—was found a copper vessel, supported by a tripod. The vessel or saucepan was hermetically closed, and incrusted all over with lapilli, so that it required considerable force to open it. But how great was the surprise of those present to find that it was nearly full of water! The interior of the vessel presented no signs of oxidation, so that no one hesitated to taste the water, when it was found perfectly sweet and good. Pompeii, then, which has enriched us, after a lapse of nearly two thousand years, with jewels and paintings and sculptured marbles, which has almost supplied our tables with bread and honey, eggs and figs, and a variety of other luxuries, has now slaked our thirst with water deposited in a vase so far back as the reign of Titus, and by one of the victims, perhaps, of the fires of Vesuvius. How curious are these revelations of the inner life of a people long since mouldered into ashes.

THE New York Express credits Col. FORNEY with the luck of making $200,000 by a sale of the franchises of the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad Company to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

CONSUMPTION.—This Scourge of humanity, bane of civilization, with despotic sway has insinuated itself into all classes, grades and conditions of life. Neither age, sex or rank are exempt from its ravages. Its icy hand falls alike upon youthful innocence and hoary headed age. Some of the prominent symptoms are Cough, Expectorant, Shortness of Breath, Irritation about the Lungs and Chest, Darting Pains in the Side and Back, Emaciation and a general negative condition of the whole system. It is authentically stated that one-fifth of the inhabitants of this country and Europe die of Consumption. No disease has been more thoroughly studied, and its nature less understood; there is no disease upon which exists a greater diversity of opinion, and no disease which has more completely baffled all medical skill and remedial agencies. Persons suffering from this dread disease or any of its concomitants should lose no time in possessing themselves of the proper Remedy, in order that they may stay its ravages, and be restored to health.

The Rev. EDWARD A. WILSON'S PREPARED PREPARATION for the cure of Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and all Throat and Lung Affections, has been in use over 10 years with the most marked success. The remedy, prepared under Mr. Wilson's personal supervision, also a pamphlet, containing the original prescription, with full and explicit directions for preparation and use, together with a short history of his case, may be obtained of the following reliable Druggist in this State, viz: JOSEPH FLEMING, 84 Market street, Pittsburgh, sole agent for Western Pennsylvania. my9:T:S

ALL THE WORLD OVER!

There are but few spots on our globe where HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are not known; and, when known, appreciated.

In the United States and British America it has become a household word. As a protective against malaria, epidemic fevers, Fever and Ague, and other diseases produced by miasmatic influences, it stands far ahead of all other preparations, and is so considered by the most eminent physicians of the day.

In South and Central America, Mexico and West Indies it has obtained a firm hold on the minds of the people, and is implicitly relied upon as a certain preventive and cure for the many malarious diseases incident to those tropical regions.

In Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand and adjacent islands, its progress has been marvelous. Merchants, miners, farmers, manufacturers and squatters all endorse it. Thousands already has it saved from the pernicious effects of miasma, arising from the low swampy grounds so prevalent in those countries.

In China and the East Indies it is working its way with rapid strides, and is extensively used in the hospitals.

In Conservative Europe, even, its influence is being felt, and the day is not far distant when HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS will become in the old world what it now is in the new—a never-failing joy to the afflicted.

PINUS CANADENSIS.

A tree which is abundant in Canada, Nova Scotia, and the more northern parts of the New England States, and is also found in the elevated and mountainous regions of the Middle States, and abounds in medicinal virtues. Dr. Swett, of Boston, has prepared a medicine from the sweet inside bark of the pine tree, called POLAND'S WHITE PINE COMPOUND, which is one of rare value in all debilitated states of the kidneys. It acts like a charm in all diseases of mucous membranes, enabling them to regain their lost tone and energy. It will be found well adapted to all those diseases, where Buchu has been tried and failed. It is likewise well suited to chronic coughs, and an infallible specific for old and debilitated cases of asthma. Many persons who at first only took a bottle of this medicine, to try, afterwards came back and got a dozen, or half dozen, which effected radical cures of diseases of the bladder and kidney of years standing.

Diabetes, a disease that has been looked upon as among the incurables, is immediately relieved by it. Notice the certificate of Asa Goodnus, published some time ago.

The United States Dispensatory, speaking of the pine, says: "it is prescribed in leucorrhœa, gleet, and other diseases of the urinary passages; in piles and chronic inflammation or ulceration of the bowels, in chronic catarrhal affections, and in various forms of rheumatism." It is exceedingly valuable in all gravelly affections, bloody urine, and where there is red and white sediment. It can be taken without interruption to one's usual avocations; and instead of sickening, produces a bracing, healthy power of endurance and vigor. Price, $1 per bottle; six for $5. Ask for POLAND'S WHITE PINE COMPOUND. For sale by the gross, dozen or single bottle, at DR. KEYSER'S Great Medicine Store, 140 Wood street. ap20

Assault and Battery.

James Kelly made information yesterday before Alderman McMasters against Dominec Gallagher, charging him with assault and battery. James had been a boarder at the house of Gallagher, on Water street below Wood, and on yesterday morning was detained later than usual at his work on a boat lying at the wharf. When he came up to the hotel for his breakfast, he found the cloth already removed, and no cold victuals about on which to make a meal. It was a bad fix for a hungry man to be left in, but the next best thing to fill up with after solids is fluids. So James bethought himself he might go into the bar, and take something to drink, in lieu of his breakfast. He accordingly stepped in, walked up to the counter and explained to the landlord that he had been cheated out of his morning meal and would like to have something to take, in order to keep the account straight. He had no sooner made his wishes known than, as he alleges, the proprietor above named, jumped over the counter, took him by the "poll of the head" and administered a severe beating. James, not liking this method of serving his wants, made the information as stated, on which the defendant was arrested and held for a hearing before the Alderman.

Drowned near Monongahela City.

On Monday afternoon a young man named Edward Conley, engaged in the coal business near Monongahela City, met his death by drowning. It appears that he went on board a coal boat, moored in the river near the works in which he was interested, for the purpose of pumping it out, and had commenced working at the pump, when the spring pole either broke or became detached from the mortice, causing him to be precipitated into the river. At the place where he fell in the water was about ten feet in depth, and he was drowned before assistance could reach him. His body was recovered in about three hours afterward. At the time of the occurrence his wife was on a visit to her relatives in Mount Washington, in which vicinity deceased formerly resided. The body reached the city Tuesday evening, and was conveyed to the residence of Mr. Stevenson, in Mt. Washington, whence it will be interred to-day. Mr. Conley was reared in the family of Judge Boggs, in Lower St. Clair township, and enjoyed the confidence and highest esteem all those who knew him.

Obtaining Money Under False Pretences.

M. S. McCauley, Treasurer of the Moulder's Union in this city, made information yesterday before Alderman Strain, against John Patchel, charging him with obtaining money under false pretences. There appeared to be a rule in this organization, that members when out of work receive a certain amount from the friends of the Union, and, if they can show sufficient reason for obtaining other sums, will get them. Patchel came to the Treasurer and represented to him that he was going away from the city to go to work and stood in need of money to bear his traveling expenses. McCauley alleges that by these representations he obtained ten dollars from the treasury, and that the next morning he went over to Allegheny and went to work in a foundry in that city. Defendant was arrested and held to bail in the sum of three hundred dollars for his appearance for a further hearing on next Saturday.

Bail Forfeited.

We made mention a few days ago of the prosecution and indictment, in the United States Court, of Robert Black, of Washington county, for having in his possession and passing counterfeit national currency, Isaac and Samuel Thompson becoming bail for his appearance in the sum of ten thousand dollars. On Tuesday, and also yesterday, when the case was called, the defendant failed to respond, and the bail having been forfeited, will be sued upon at once. Black, it will be recollected, was the individual who made the information against Alexander Moffitt and William Dawson for conspiring to charge and indict Isaac Thompson for passing counterfeit money. An officer has been dispatched to arrest him.

Accident at a Sawmill.—Stewart Hamilton, of Allegheny, employed at Neese & Co's sawmill, on Chartiers creek, met with a very serious accident on Tuesday afternoon. He was tending a cross cut saw, and in stepping on a roller his foot slipped, bringing his left leg in contact with the saw, and before he could extricate himself from his position, his limb was terribly lacerated, and a wound inflicted of some fourteen inches in length, penetrating to the bone. He received prompt medical attendance and hopes are expressed that amputation may not be rendered necessary.

Fell from a Wagon.—Yesterday afternoon, Thomas Lee, while driving a wagon loaded with flour, fell accidentally on the pavement at the corner of Smithfield and Third streets, and in the fall carried with him a full barrel, the weight of which inflicted very serious injuries. He was taken to the next house, where he received the medical attendance of Dr. Arthurs. The case has not been declared fatal, the patient suffering only from internal bruises, resulting from the pressure caused by the fall of the heavy barrel.

Seriously Ill.—Hon. William Boggs, formerly Associate Judge in the Criminal Court, and a well known and highly esteemed citizen, has been lying seriously ill at his residence in Lower St. Clair for some time past. We are pleased to learn that his condition has somewhat improved, and that hopes of his recovery are entertained by his physicians.

Charged with Larceny.—Elizabeth Jeremy, of the Sixth ward, made information yesterday charging Owen Smith and his wife Elizabeth with the larceny of a set of jewelry worth twenty-five dollars. The accused were arrested, and in default of $300 bail each, were committed to jail for a hearing on Thursday.

[COMMUNICATION.]

Mayoralty.

Editors Gazette:—Although it may be considered a little in advance of the usual time, nevertheless my interest in the progress of Pittsburgh, and the success of the Republican party is such, as to impel me to endorse a suggestion (incidentally heard the other day,) with my unqualified approval—that is the presentation of William A. Herron, Esq., as a candidate for Mayor of this city, under the Republican banner.

It is unnecessary for me to speak of the capacity, honesty and integrity of that gentleman. If nominated and elected he will prove an efficient and dignified official, with every requisite to perform every duty required of him with credit to himself and honor to the party. Knowing him as I do, I should feel much pride as a Unionist, in seeing him our standard bearer on the 1st of January 1868 as our candidate for Mayor.

SECOND WARD.

Assault and Battery.

Martin McDonald, of this city, made information before Alderman Lynch, charging George McCutcheon, of Stewartstown, with assault and battery. It appears that some time ago McDonald and another young man took a drive up to Stewartstown, stopping at the tavern of Mr. Dunn. While there they got into some difficulty or other with McCutcheon, who afterwards made an information before Justice Smith, charging McDonald with assault and battery. McDonald was arrested and gave bail for his appearance to answer the charge. Since that time he has found parties who are willing to testify that he was not the aggressor, but McCutcheon, and he (McDonald) acting in self-defense. Hence he made the information against McCutcheon for assault and battery. McCutcheon was arrested by Alderman Lynch's police, but, on giving bonds in the sum of five hundred dollars before Justice Smith for his appearance at Court, was released.

EXECUTION.

would not now feel that I had been wronged by any person; and I would have had lawyers assigned me by the Court that would have acted honest and fair with me, and would not have induced me to refuse to testify, to benefit others and injure myself. Before God, the Sheriff never held out any inducements that there was any chance of escape by making confessions, or any other way, and only said to me that it would not make my case any worse—it might better me, but he would not say it would do so. And when he had learned that I thought of committing suicide, he warned me not to think of such a thing—that if I done so I would have no chance of escaping hell, and that I had as good a chance as any other person of going to heaven now, if I would apply to God for forgiveness. And if the paper says anything else it is not true, and the people I hope will not believe it, as my counsel induced me to say many things, with the promise of benefitting me, that I would not have thought of under any other circumstances. And I hope the people will see the way I was treated, and that any paper they may show after I am dead and gone will not be believed to be true.

I recently heard that Mr. Montgomery has a paper showing that I said "Babe" was not with me. If any such paper exists, it is the affidavit that was obtained from me with the understanding it would benefit me. The paper was not composed by me at all. I do not deny copying it and signing it; but did so, believing my counsel was dealing truly and honestly with me. I deem these sufficient reasons to show the public why I did not testify, why I plead not guilty to the charge laid to me, and why I signed the affidavit. And I hope God will forgive all those who have deceived and held out false hopes to me of any kind, also those who on my trial testified falsely, as freely as I forgive them, and as I expect my heavenly father to forgive me.

I draw up this full and true statement with the feeling that I am not for this world. A few more short days will terminate my existence on earth, and I feel it my solemn duty to unburden my mind of the heavy load of guilt and sin that is resting on it, and prepare myself to meet my God—also to set the mind of the public at rest in regard to who the murderers of Robert W. Dinsmore were. As stated before, the deed was committed by myself and my accomplice, "Babe," or William Montgomery, Jr.

I make this statement freely and voluntarily, not that I anticipate any benefit from it in this world, but to unburden my mind, and prepare for another and better world, where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest; and to show my friends how I was led off, and how I was deceived by my counsel. And I hope the facts set forth in this statement, and which are true, will be read with some comfort by my friends, when I am dead and gone.

And, in conclusion, I would again warn any who follow in my footsteps in crime, to beware, and not be deceived by counsel, for I feel that if I had not had any counsel at all, and persisted in my former statement, on my trial, and testified, as I ought to have done, that I would have been better off to-day. I would again warn the public not to believe any papers that may be shown after I am dead, but this one, which is true, and which is signed by me before God, and in the presence of some of the most prominent citizens of Washington.

This statement is dictated entirely by myself, and is made freely, and by the promptings of an overburdened conscience.

Signed by me, this 15th day of April, 1867, in the presence of the following witnesses.

[Signed] ROBERT FOGLER.

The Wonder of Wonders.

We recently made the broad assertion that Dr. Keyser's Blood Searcher "accomplishes more good for suffering humanity than any other medicine now in use upon the face of the earth," and, corroborated by the wonderful cure which we publish in another column of to-day's issue, we have no idea of retracting. The present case is selected from among a number at home, the cure of a little daughter of Mr. Neal McFarland, a well-known citizen of our city. Dr. Keyser has reason to be proud of the success which invariably follows the use of the Blood Searcher at home and abroad. Here the suffering have the advantage of consultation with Dr. Keyser, who, from study, experience and the regular investure of the Medical Degrees, is recognized among our most reliable physicians, and is thoroughly acquainted with the anatomy and ills of mankind. We commend the certificate published in another column to the attention of our readers, knowing that it speaks volumes for the curative powers of DR. KEYSER'S BLOOD SEARCHER.—Pittsburgh Gazette.

Two bottles will cure nursing sore mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.

Two or three bottles will cure the worst kind of boils.

Two bottles will cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.

Three to five bottles will cure the worst case of erysipelas.

One or two bottles will cure all humor in the eyes.

Two bottles will cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.

Four to six bottles will cure corrupt and running ulcers.

Two or three bottles will cure the worst case of ringworm.

Two or three bottles will cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.

Three to four bottles will cure salt rheum.

Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.

One of these bottles is warranted to cure the worst case of Dyspepsia. I know from the experience of thousands that it has cured canker in the stomach.

One or two bottles are warranted to cure sick headache.

One or two bottles are warranted to regulate a costive state of the bowels.

One or two bottles will regulate all derangement of the kidneys.

Four or six bottles has cured the worst cases of dropsy.

Six to ten bottles has cured the worst case of piles. A relief is always experienced; what a mercy to get relief in such an excruciating disease.

To those who are subject to a sick headache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it have been costive for years, and have been regulated by it. Where the body is sound, it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will sometimes cause very singular feelings; but you must not be alarmed—they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it—on the contrary, when that feeling is gone, you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.

Meeting of Common Council.

Members present: Messrs. Barnhill, Beck, Boggs, Brush, Ford, Hemphill, Hare, House, Mawhinney, McClelland, McGowan, McQuewan, O'Neil, Rebman, Reed, Roberts, Robb, Seibert, Sloan, Torley, Verner, Weldon, and President Steel.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The President stated the object of the meeting to be, to take action on a resolution adopted by Select Council at their last regular meeting, not reached by this body, granting privilege to sell the Good Intent Engine House. The Chairman then read the resolution authorizing the sale of the Good Intent Engine House to James McGregor, for the sum of thirty-five hundred dollars. After a lengthy debate, participated in by many of the members, the action of Select Council was concurred in.

A communication was read by the chairman from Mrs. Samuel McKee, President of the Ladies Monumental Association, requesting council to withdraw the petition presented to them, asking privilege to put up a hose carriage to be voted for by the Fire Companies at the forthcoming fair.

On motion the communication was accepted and the request complied with.

Mr. Torley offered the following:

Resolved: That the Committee on Gas be instructed to have lamps placed on Franklin street, between Centre avenue and Webster street. Referred to Committee on Gas.

Mr. McClelland: Resolved, That the Gas Committee be instructed to have a lamp placed at the corner of Wilkins street and Mulberry Alley. Referred to Gas Committee.

Mr. Siebert: Resolved, That the Gas Committee be instructed to have a lamp placed on Mechanic street, between Pike street and the bridge. Referred to Gas Committee.

On motion adjourned.

The Aquatic Championship.

In our yesterday morning's edition appeared a statement copied from the Illustrated Sporting Times, concerning Mr. Walter Brown and the aquatic championship. We have seen an affidavit of Mr. Brown, taken before Alderman Strain, to the effect that said statement is false and untrue in every particular. Following is a card from his trainer:

GLENWOOD, May 16, 1867.

EDITORS PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.—Dear Sir: Having seen articles in several sporting papers, and copies by our local journals, and I the trainer of Walter Brown, feeling a pride in the welfare of a stranger coming so far from home, I must speak a word in his behalf. These articles against Mr. Brown have emanated from feelings of revenge on the part of John Shea, who came with Walter and was sent home for incompetency. Since I have been with Mr. Brown I cheerfully state to all friends of fair play, that he has done all, and more work, than I have required of him. I have found him a perfect gentleman in every sense of the word, and knowing that his whole heart and soul is in the task before him, I feel it my duty to speak for him, who works on silently without a murmur at the slanderous articles hurled at him through journals, and in several instances letters by mail. That he has met with obstacles, put in his way by people in Pittsburgh familiar to the public, there is not the least doubt, and if he wins this race, which I firmly believe he will do, he will prove to the world that his slanderers are cowardly liars and that he possesses the iron nerve of a Lion. Sharpsburg Lots and Free Excursion.—See McIlwain's Auction advertisement of a grand sale of Lots in Sharpsburg, on next Monday morning. Two free excursion trains will leave Pittsburgh and Allegheny at nine o'clock for the sale.

The Ring—Prize Fight at the Horse Market—Principals and Seconds Arrested.

Near East Liberty there has been established of late a camp of those nomadic people commonly known as Gypsies, who make their living by trading horses, telling fortunes, &c. Yesterday a delegation from the camp visited the city and, very naturally, came to the horse market, in the rear of Trimble's, to see what could be done in horse flesh. Being quite successful in their trip, they had indulged in numerous drinks, and got into a quarrel among themselves. The result was that the leaders of the opposing factions agreed to settle their difficulties according to the rules of the P. R. The preliminary arrangements having been gone through with, Leonard Wells and William Broadway took their position in the ring, with Sam. Cooper and John Broadway as seconds. Not being on the spot at the time, we cannot give the details of the fight in full. Suffice it to say, that six rounds were fought in a scientific manner, occupying about twenty minutes, when officers Strain and Cupples appeared on the ground and put an end to the fight. William Broadway, second for his son, made a severe struggle to escape from the officers, but by the timely arrival of the "emergency," the whole party were arrested, with three of the lookers-on. They were brought to the Mayor's office, where the principals and seconds were fined each twenty-five dollars and costs, making a total of $109.60, which they paid and were discharged. The three men arrested as lookers-on were discharged. The Gypsies will probably learn that the city is not the right place to select for an exhibition of their skill in the "manly art."

Spangler & Bradford, Practical Plumbers, Gas and Steam Fitters, No. 47 Ohio Street, Allegheny City.

We take pleasure to-day in calling attention to the advertisement of Messrs. Spangler & Bradford, the well-known practical plumbers and gas and steam fitters, whose establishment is located at No. 47 Ohio street, Allegheny. The members of this firm are both practical and experienced mechanics, and give personal attention to all work in their line entrusted to them, guaranteeing to give satisfaction in all cases. None but the most skilled and competent workmen are employed, and large or small contracts of work are taken and filled in the best style of workmanship, and at the most reasonable rates. Builders, landlords and tenants, who contemplate introducing water or gas into dwelling houses or stores, can award their patronage to no more painstaking mechanics. At their establishment will be found full lines of gas chandeliers, pendants, brackets, burners, globes, pumps, sinks, closets, basins, pipes, beer and ale pumps. Particular attention given to country work. We commend the firm heartily to the patronage of our readers.

The Great Demon Dance.

This fascinating development of what can be made charming in the ballet was produced at the Opera House last evening. It was wonderfully original, sparkling and irresistible in its attractive power. Jovetta excelled herself, and was delightfully sustained by her assistant graces. We have already extolled the splendor of the scenery in this extraordinary spectacle; but we have not said so much as was deserved of the acting. Mr. Griffiths' "Black Crook" is a sustained and really great instance of intelligent and vigorous personation. Mr. Hotto has illimitable opportunities for the exposition of studied and spontaneous humor. Likewise, in a diverse but equally effective manner, Mr. Ward and Mrs. Sylvester ably acquit themselves. Louisa Sylvester is useful and discreet and excellent as we have always found her, and Marie Therese is as full of physical life and vocal fun as any one could wish to see and hear. Another two months, at least, of exciting and profitable existence to this singular dramatic experiment is certainly assured.

Candies, Cakes, Nuts & Fruits.

The well-known Confectioner, J. W. Hannah, No. 81, Liberty street, announces in our columns to-day, that he has on hand, in anticipation of Parties and Picnics, such a stock of choice Candies, Fruits, Nuts &c., as has seldom been seen in this city. All the famous sweetmeats of foreign and home manufacturers are sold at this house at eastern prices. Retail dealers should call and examine the rich and rare assortment. He deals largely in every kind of foreign and domestic Fruits and Nuts. Mr. Hannah is a clever and fair dealing gentleman, and we recommend those who are getting up Picnics and Parties to give him a call. Remember his No. 81, Liberty street.

Alleged Robbery.

William Shere, a colored man, was robbed some days ago of $58, at the house of a woman named Hellen Johnson, where he was stopping. Entertaining suspicions that the landlady took his money, he went before Alderman Butler and made information against her for larceny. Justice Butler proceeded to the lady's premises, searched her and discovered some money, which, however, did not answer the description given by the prosecutor of that he claimed to have been stolen from him. Shere next directed his suspicions upon a boy, whose name has not been learned.

Shady Side Church.

A Fair and Festival will be held at Shady Side (Presbyterian) Church, in the vicinity of Shady Side Station, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, to-day from three to ten o'clock, the proceeds to be devoted to the furnishment of the edifice, which was but recently completed. Tickets for admission and supper seventy-five cents. Supper will be served from five to eight o'clock. Preparations for the occasion are made on a liberal scale, mainly through the efforts of the children of the congregation, and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

To Iron Men and Manufacturers.

With pleasure we draw your attention to the advertisement of D. Appleton and Company, of No. 443 and 445, Broadway, New York, to be found in to-day's paper. They have just published a new work entitled, "The Management of Steel," by George Ede, employed at the Royal Gun Factories Department, Woolwich. This is a valuable work to machinists and workers in iron and steel. It will be sent free by mail for one dollar and a half. Address the above numbers.

Monumental Fair.—The ladies interested in the Monumental Fair should all attend, promptly, the meeting at City Hall to-day. The arrangements for a grand English concert, to be given on the 23d instant, at Masonic Hall, under the direction of Prof. Tetedoux, are all perfected, and the tickets are to be distributed at the Hall to-day. Other business of importance will also be transacted. The members of the Decorating Committee and the Committee on "Relics and Curiosities" are especially requested to be present. Let there be a full turn out of all the members.

New Commission House.—Elsewhere will be found the card of Mr. Robert Knox, Jr., located at No. 413 Liberty street. We take pleasure in commending this house to the attention of our readers, who may have any dealings in his line. Mr. K is a fair dealer and consigners can rely upon having their business attended to in the most faithful manner. Consignments of all kinds of produce are solicited and prompt returns in each case guaranteed.

Fell From a Roof.—A young man, by the name of Hinkle, fell from the roof of a house in the Sixth ward yesterday, and sustained severe injuries. Dr. W. Batten was called in and administered prompt relief to the sufferer.

Steamboatmen's Convention.

ST. LOUIS, May 15.—The Steamboatmen's Convention passed resolutions to-day setting forth that as the laws now in force in relation to navigation and commerce apply almost exclusively to ocean navigation, they should be modified to suit inland navigation, and especially high pressure boilers and machinery; that to avoid explosions boilers should be constructed only of double hammered charcoal iron or steel; that the law compelling the use of lock up valves is impolitic and unnecessary, and casts a slur on engineers; that the taxes and expenses, consisting of licenses, enrollments, inspections, hospital dues, hotel license, passenger and other taxes, to which no other branch of business is equally subject, bears so heavy on river steamers, many of which are of small class, that it will either drive them from the rivers or compel them to extort upon the public; that when the master or owners of a steamer equip and man the same in accordance with law, said boat or owners should not be held for damages arising out of the acts of any licensed officers. The resolutions also prescribe a rule for the measurement of steamers, and provide for the appointment of a committee to draw up a bill embodying the above points and such others as may be deemed desirable, and request the co-operation of the Secretary of the Treasury in having it pass Congress, said committee to go to Washington and engineer the matter.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,
WEDNESDAY, May 15, 1867.

The New York stock quotations to-day, as reported by Ph. R. Mertz, were as follows: Gold, 136⅝; Eighty-one bonds, 111¼; Five Twenties, 1862, 109⅝; Five Twenties, 1864, 105⅝; Five Twenties, 1865, 106¼; 5-20s, Consols, 108; Seven Thirties, first issue, 106¼; do, second and third issues, 105¾; Ten Forties, 99¾; Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad, 73¾; Fort Wayne & Chicago, 96¼; Erie, 63¾; Chicago and North Western, 35¾; Chicago and North Western prefrd, 69¼; Chicago and Rock Island, 89¾; New York Central, 97¼; Reading, 103¾; Michigan Southern, 67¾.

Closing quotations received by James T. Brady & Co:

U. S. Sixes 1881	111¼
" 5-20's 1862	109⅝
" " 1864	105¼
" " 1865	106¼
U. S. Ten-Forties	99¾
U. S. 5-20s, 1865, January and July	107¼
August Seven-thirties	105¾
June "	105¼
July "	105¼
Dec., Compounds, 1864	116¼
Gold	136⅜

Gold, against all expectations, opened weak to-day at 136¾, declined to 136½, advanced to 137, but closed dull and lower. The heavy shipments at the end of last and beginning of this week were principally remittances for gold coupons belonging to European bondholders, and the balance to cover sixty day bills drawn against cotton shipments. The large gold balances in banks and in the hands of private parties, and a probability that the Government, since the war cloud is over, will sell part of its surplus, and will have a depressing influence on the rate of premium. Government securities are steady and lower on 1865 consols; at present quotations, it will not pay to buy as an investment, as money out of the eastern cities will command from 10 to 12 per cent. per annum. Stock speculation is very tame, and it is nothing more than gambling, and viewed in that light by respectable business men. The majority of our through roads are earning dividends, and with good prospects for crops will undoubtedly pay handsomely at present prices if bought for a long investment.

Local stocks are not much inquired for, and they have to be auctioneered off in order to find purchasers.

—The Treasury Department is still endeavoring to withdraw from circulation the bills of failed national banks. The task is a difficult one. The Laconia National Bank (N. H.) having been chartered without circulating, the Comptroller agrees to give it an amount of national notes equal to the bills it will collect of the suspended institutions. The Laconia, therefore, offers the very liberal commission of two per cent. on all such notes retired to them.

—A Western Railway director states that the railroad warfare at the West is more bitter than ever. The roads are now carrying freight at less than canal and lake rates. The Michigan Southern is losing in this way at the rate of over $1,000 a day, and the Fort Wayne and New York Central are losing nearly as much.

—As there is much inquiry now among the people in relation to the different classes of United States securities, we publish the following descriptive schedule, which will be found useful in general, but particularly in the counting room:

United States Sixes of 1881, dated in 1861, and payable twenty years from January 1 and July 1 of that year, hence their name. They are due A. D. 1881. Interest on them is 6 per cent. in gold, payable January 1 and July 1.

Old Five Twenties, called old because they were the first of these popular bonds issued, and designated Five Twenties from the time they have to run. They bear date May 1, 1862. Redeemable after May 1, 1867; payable May 1, 1882. Interest at 6 per cent. in gold, payable May and November 1. The coupon bonds of this issue command a higher premium than the new, because they are as yet the only kind that are available for sale in the English and German markets.

Five Twenties of 1864, issued November 1, 1864, redeemable after November 1, 1869, payable November 1, 1884. Interest six per cent. in gold, payable May and November 1.

Five Twenties of 1865, November issue. These bonds bear date November 1, 1865; redeemable after November 1, 1870; payable November 1, 1885. Interest 6 per cent. in gold, payable May and November 1.

Five Twenties of 1865, July issue. These bonds are issued in exchange for Seven Thirties converted, and bear date July 1, 1865, redeemable after July 1, 1870, payable July 1, 1885. Interest 6 per cent in gold, payable January 1 July 1.

Ten Forty bonds, bearing this name from the number of years for which they are issued, being redeemable after ten years, and payable forty years from March 1, 1864. Interest at 5 per cent. in gold, payable on the 500 and 1000 coupon bonds, and on all the registered, March 1 and September 1, and on the 100s and 50s coupons, yearly, on March 1.

First series, Seven Thirty Treasury notes, dated August 15, 1864, payable three years from date, or convertible, at the option of the holder into Five Twenty year bonds, having the same feature as the old Five Twenties, only beginning August 15, 1867. The interest on these Treasury notes is at the rate of 7 3-10 per cent. per annum, in currency, being one cent. a day on each $50, and payable August 15 and February 15.

Second series, Seven Thirty notes. Same as the first, excepting they date June 15, 1865, and interest payable June 15 and December 15. Convertible, June 15, 1868, either into Five Twenty bonds or money, at the option of the holder.

Third series Seven Thirty notes. Same as the first two, excepting that the Government reserves the right to pay the interest at any time at 6 per cent. in gold, instead of 7-30 in currency, convertible, three years from their date, viz: July 15, 1865, into Five Twenties. Interest payable July 15 and January 15.

All the gold-bearing bonds are issued either coupon or registered.

All the coupon bonds are issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500 and $1000; registered the same, with $5000 and $10,000.

The Seven Thirty notes are issued in sums of $50, $100, $500, $1000 and $5000, all with coupons attached.

Any coupon bonds will be exchanged by the Government for registered of the same issue.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,
WEDNESDAY, May 15, 1867.

The general markets continue dull and unsettled, and the prospects for any immediate improvement are by no means encouraging. The tenor of the eastern advices have caused quite a panic in the Corn market, and if the weather continues favorable and the crops turn out as well as anticipated, a panic in Flour and Grain generally may be expected. Once established that there will be anything like a full crop, operators in Flour and Grain will begin to unload, and then look out for a tumble of considerable magnitude.

GRAIN—There is no Wheat in this market except what is held by millers, and they have but very little. Corn is very dull and unsettled, and lower. Indeed, there were apparently no buyers to-day at any price—prime Yellow would not have brought over 90 to 95c. Oats quiet and unchanged—may be quoted at 60 to 61c, on track, and 65 to 67c, in store. Rye is in good demand; sale of 75 and 103 bags at $1,65. No sales of Barley reported.

FLOUR—Is quiet but steady, with a fair local demand but unchanged. We continue to quote at $15 to $15,50 for good to choice Spring Wheat; $16 to $17 for Winter Wheat, and $19 to $20 for fancy brands. Rye Flour, $9,50 to $10.

PROVISIONS—The exceedingly high prices for fresh meats has stimulated the local demand for Bacon somewhat, though prices are unchanged—9¼c to 9½c for Shoulders; 11½c to 12¼ for Ribbed and Clear Sides; 15¼ to 15½c for Plain Sugar Cured Hams; 16¼ to 16½c for Canvassed do, Lard 13¼ to 13½c; Dried Beef, 22½@23; and Mess Pork, $23,00 to $23,50.

BUTTER—Continues dull with a supply in excess of the demand, and prices have still further declined. Good to prime fresh grass Butter may be fairly quoted at 18c to 22 cents.

EGGS—The demand is rather light, and fresh packed sell readily at 16c.

POTATOES—Steady and in fair demand, but unchanged. Sales of Peach Blows at $3@3,25 per barrel, and Buckeyes at $3,50.

CHEESE—New Western Reserve is selling at 14@15, as to quality.

DRIED FRUIT—Quiet and unchanged—12 to 16c for Peaches, and 8c to 9c for Apples.

GREEN APPLES—Very scarce; prime Apples would command $7 to $8 per bbl.

HAY—Is selling in small lots at $25 to $28, as to quality.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,
WEDNESDAY, May 15, 1867.

CRUDE—There are no new characteristics in the Crude market worthy of special notice. The demand both for present and future delivery continues exceedingly light, and as the tendency is downward, holders generally are anxious to realize, though, as yet, prices are without quotable change. We can report sales of 150 bbls at 7c, bbls returned; 1600 (44 gravity,) in bulk, at 6¾, and 3500 (43 gravity) at 6¾c. As will be seen from the above, spot oil may be fairly quoted at 6¾ to 7c, the outside figure being obtainable only for choice gravities. Advices from Oil City report oil steady at $2,50 to $2,60 per bbl at that point; which shows a declining tendency, though the figures are still too high for this market, and business must of necessity be dull until there is a change—either lower prices there or improved figures here.

REFINED—The demand for bonded oil continues light, and while the market is dull and weak, prices are nominally unchanged. Sale of 500 bbls standard white, delivered in Philadelphia, at 26¼; 500 to be delivered between the 1st and 15th of June, at 26¾; and a call for 500 for balance of 1867, at 28, on board cars here, and $1 per barrel. Prime light straw to white may be quoted about one cent per gallon below standard white, but the demand seems to be centered mainly on the latter. Free oil is quiet and unchanged.

ARRIVALS—But two arrivals reported to-day, 550 bbls for Fisher & Bro.; and 2000 for Dilworth & Bro—total, 2550 bbls.

RIVER NEWS.

The river is again rising at this point, the Allegheny marks last evening indicating nine and a half feet. A telegram from Oil City reported the Allegheny stationary at that point, with four feet ten inches and weather cloudy and wet. Here, the weather continues unsettled and cold for the season with frequent showers of rain.

There has been no arrivals since our last report aside from the regular packets, and we are not aware of any boats being due for a day or two. The Argosy, for Cincinnati, and the Kate Robinson, for St. Louis, departed. The Argosy had an excellent trip, and the Robinson had about all the freight she could take, and a fair number of passengers.

The Ida Rees No. 2 left for Oil City last evening, and the Echo, from the same point, was due last night. The Rees had a very fair trip.

The Lorena, Capt. Sam Shuman, is now in turn for St. Louis and will be the first boat out. The Lorena is one of the best boats in the trade, and Capt. Shuman is a popular steamboatman. She will doubtless get off about Saturday.

A large number of towboats have arrived within the past few days, and the lower end of the landing is pretty well filled up again. As the river is again rising, it is probable that quite a number of them will get out again, though there will doubtless be considerable difficulty in getting tows, as there is but comparatively little coal ready or loaded. The water has kept up so well this spring that there has been no chance for accumulation, and the down river markets, as a natural consequence, are all well supplied. At Louisville coal is very dull, and the same, we believe, is true of New Orleans.

The Julia No. 2, Capt. W. Coulson, is now in turn for Cincinnati and Louisville, and will be the first boat out. Passengers and shippers should bear this in mind.

The Minnie and Belle were advertised to leave Cincinnati for Pittsburgh on Tuesday. The Kate Putnam, en route from St. Louis to Pittsburgh, and the Bellevernon, en route from Pittsburgh to St. Louis, were at Evansville on Monday.

The Lake Erie No. 3 and Greyhound came up over the falls on Monday, and the Mary Davage arrived at Louisville the same day. The Antelope, en route for St. Louis, with two barges of oil and three of coal, arrived at Cairo on Monday. Capt. Simpson denies the report of the Antelope having sunk one of her barges.

Capt. Williams has entered the Allegheny River packet Peerless in the Cincinnati and New Richmond trade as a daily packet, leaving at 4 p. m. Capt. J. B. Coffman is in command, and Captain Williams in the office.

The Belle, Capt. Thos. Loughry, leaves for Pittsburgh to-day, on her first trip from this city. The Belle will leave here weekly in conjunction with the Argosy, Capt. Lew. Vandergrift. Her owners have not yet determined on her day of departure, but she will remain in the trade, and leave here every week. Capt. John W. Chambers is chief clerk of the Belle. The Camelia, Captain W. G. Coffin, leaves this evening, without fail, for the Tennessee River. The Golden Eagle yesterday reshipped fifty tons of freight on the Minnie. Captains Ed. Evans and Jas. M. Vandergrift, of the Westmoreland, left for Pittsburgh in last night's train. Yesterday noon the officers and crew of the John H. Groesbeck agreeably surprised Capt. Dan W. Marratta, her commander, through Mr. Rowe, the carpenter of this steamer, who, in behalf of his brother officers, in a few appropriate remarks presented to the Captain a magnificent stand of colors—the Stars and Stripes being fifteen by thirty feet. They also presented a pair of "horns" to the boat. Capt. Maratta responded to Mr. Rowe, when the colors were dipped in Werk's Sparkling Catawba. This compliment speaks well for the esteem in which Capt. Maratta is held by his brother officers.

Fulton & Livingston, at Pittsburgh, launched the first steamer in the year 1812. That once dashed its wheels in the waters of the great west, and awakened new echoes along the silent shores of the "Father of Waters." She made the trip to New Orleans during that year, and was finally snagged and sunk nearly opposite the site where Baton Rouge now stands. The two succeeding years gave to the waters the "Comet," "Vesuvius," and the "Enterprise." The last steamer was under the command of Captain H. M. Shrieve, and was the first boat that ever made the through trip from New Orleans to Pittsburgh. On her return she made the run from Pittsburgh to Louisville in twenty-four days. No horns were presented to Capt. Shrieve, but triumphal arches were thrown across the streets. Shrieve was old Neptune himself, a sea lion with all who met him. And the "Enterprise" had accomplished all that was possible in inland navigation. The dreams of old Bob Fulton became realities; as a prophet he foretold the future glory of the great Mississippi Valley. Capt. Shrieve told his friends he could make the same trip in twenty days under more favorable circumstances.

We take the following from the St. Louis Republican, of Sunday: Three more steamers took their departure yesterday for Fort Benton and the gold country, making a total, so far, of thirty-eight boats that have left this spring, and there are still two more announced to leave. Of the boats that left yesterday was the Octavia, Capt. La Barge. This boat had by far the best trip of the season, and will doubtless go through in quick time.

Mr. Melton, of the well known firm of Melton & Taylor, Fort Benton, yesterday received a letter from the Fort which gives everything but a flattering prospect for the fleet of steamers now on their way up. The weather is reported very dry and dusty, snow disappearing rapidly without rain. River very low and no hopes of any material rise. Teamsters are making preparations to go down and meet the boats. The little side wheel Countess is now at the docks being fitted up to ply as a packet between Hannibal and Quincy. Three more steamers took their departure yesterday for Fort Benton and the gold country, and there are still two more announced to leave. Montana left Omaha May 5; Carrie passed up; Kate Kinney passed up on the 6th; met Tacony above Bellevue; Lilly below Plattsmouth; G. W. Graham and G. A. Thompson at Hurricane Island; Evening Star at Wyoming; Marcella above Nebraska City; Nymph No. 2 above Peru; Jennie Brown at Peru. 7th—Met R. M. Bishop above Bon Tom; Luella above St. Joseph; Agnes at St. Joseph; Gerard B. Allen passed up. 8th—Met Cornelia below Summer; Viola Belle below Kansas City; Columbian above Wayne City; Little Rock below Liberty. 9th—Met Glasgow above Lexington; War Eagle above Keytesville; Lady Gay below Frankford. 10th—Met Lady Grace above Cambridge; H. S. Turner above Sandy Hood; Sam Gaty above Stanleys; Post Boy and Lexington at Jefferson City; Richmond below St. Aubert's; Silver Lake No. 4 at Gasconade. 11th—Met W. I. Lewis at Missouriton.

The St. Louis Democrat, of Monday, says: On Saturday Mr. J. B. Wolfe, Inspector of Customs, boarded the steamer Great Republic on business, while the mate of the boat was engaged in washing the decks with hose. Having an old grudge against Wolfe, the mate turned the waterfall upon him, giving him a thorough ducking, and causing him to retreat at double quick. Wolfe had the mate arrested for assaulting a revenue officer, against the peace and dignity of the United States of America.
